

OLD TIMER'S

VOL. 1

BASEBALL PHOTO ALBUM

DAN
BROUTHERS

LOU GEHRIG

CAP ANSON

BABE RUTH

"WEE"
WILLIE
KEELER

GROVER
ALEXANDER

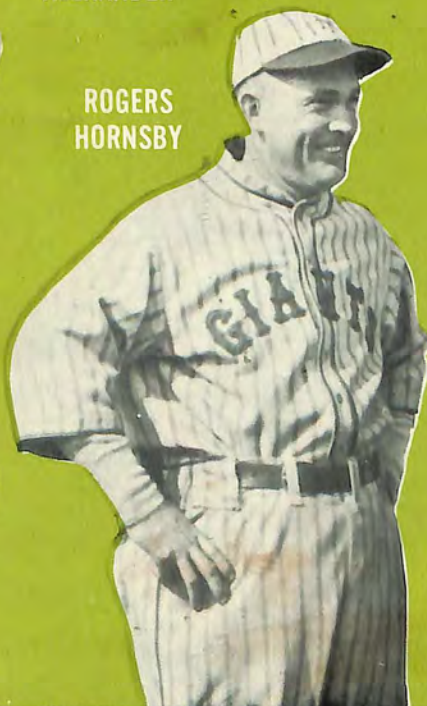

CHRISTY
MATHEWSON

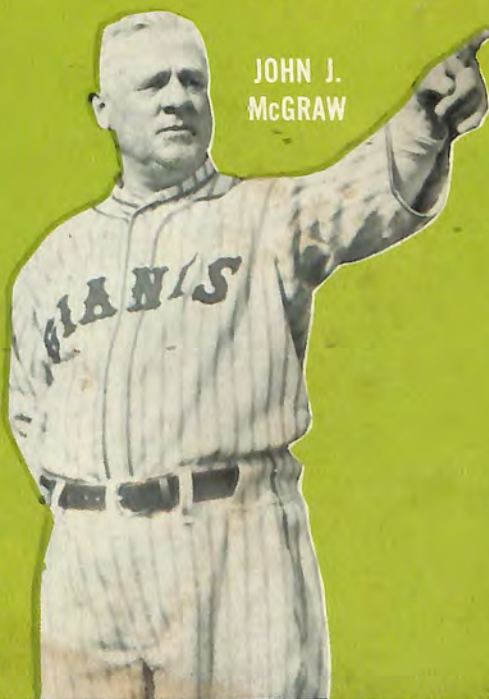

HONUS WAGNER

ROGERS
HORNSBY

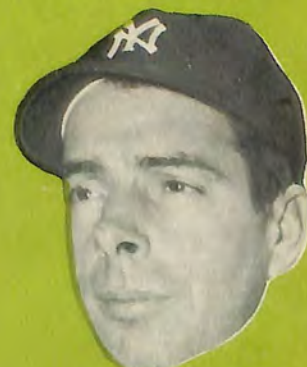

JOHN J.
MCGRAW

HOME RUN BAKER

TY COBB

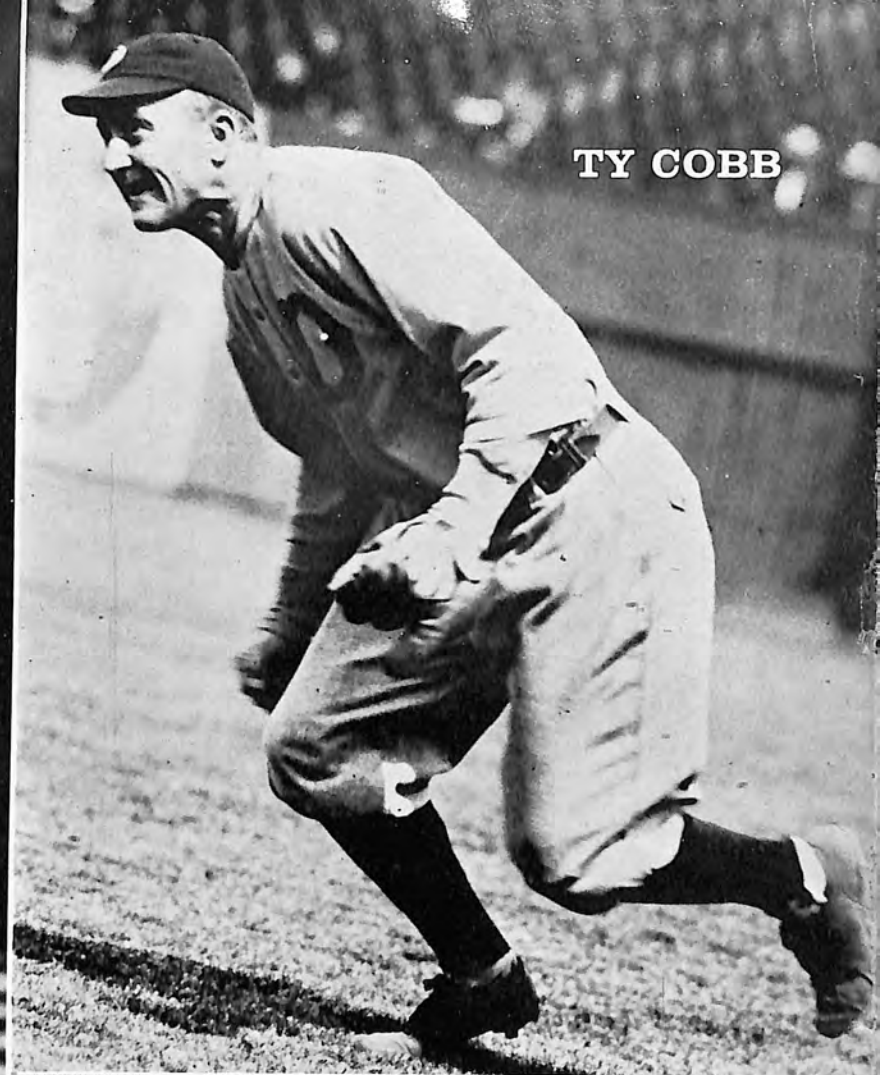

JOE DIMAGGIO

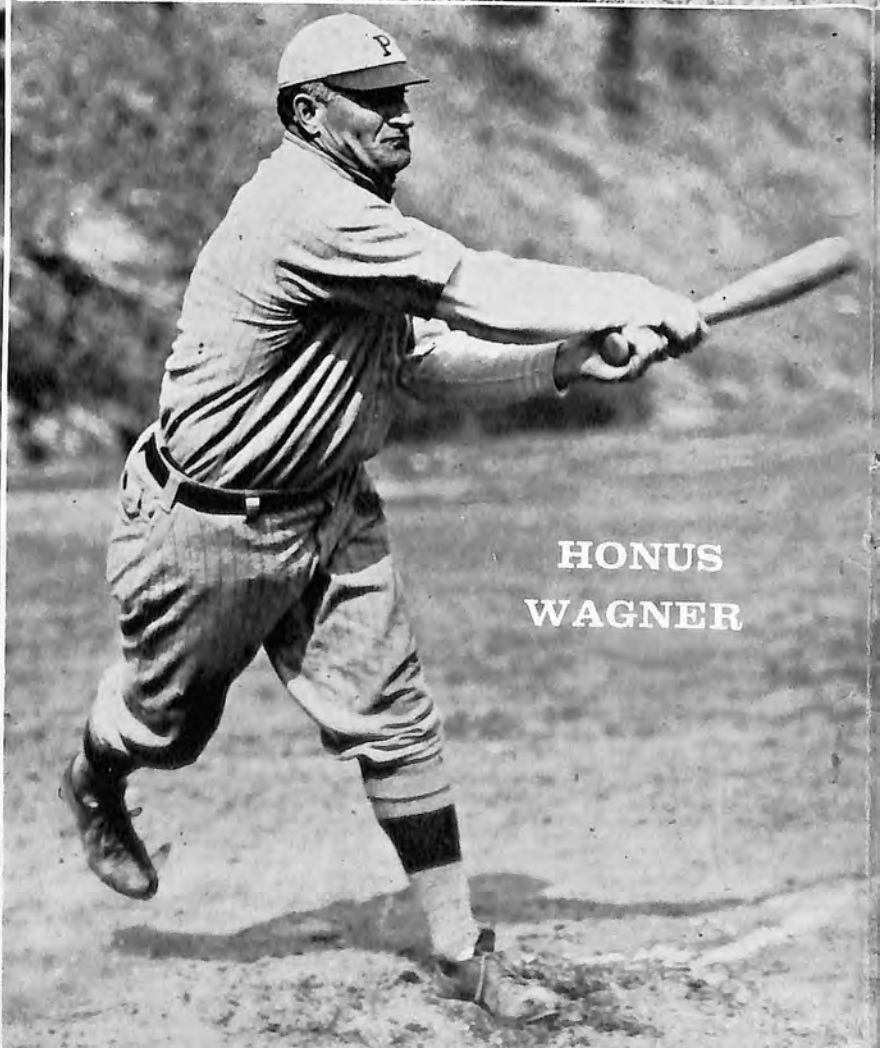

OVER 300 COLLECTOR'S ITEM PHOTOS OF
FAMOUS OLD TIMERS FROM THE 1890's ON

"BABE" RUTH

TY COBB

HONUS
WAGNER

	Page		Page		Page
Adams, Ace	37	Griffith, Clark	3	Newhouser, Hal	41
Agganis, Harry	47	Grimes, Burleigh	16	Newsom, Louis (Bobo)	40
Alexander, Grover Cleveland	11	Grimm, Charles	17	Nichols, Charles (Kid)	4
Allen, Johnny	34	Grove, Bob (Lefty)	24	O'Doul, Frank (Lefty)	17
Altrock, Nick	1	Gutteridge, Don	38	Olmo, Luis	38
Anson, Adrian (Cap)	2	Haas, Bert	41	O'Neill, Steve	11
Appling, Luke	29	Hack, Stan	32	Ott, Mel	23
Averill, Earl	28	Hadley, Irving (Bump)	24	Page, Joe	39
Baker Frank (Home Run)	9	Hafey, Charles (Chick)	23	Paige, Leroy (Satchel)	45
Barney, Rex	44	Haines, Jess	17	Parnell, Mel	47
Barrett, Charles (Red)	37	Hallahan, William (Wild Bill)	23	Passeau, Claude	36
Baumholtz, Frank	47	Harder, Mel	26	Peckinpaugh, Roger	11
Bender, Charles (Chief)	1	Harris, Mickey	41	Pennock, Herb	12
Bengough, Benny	19	Harris, Stanley (Bucky)	18	Pesky, Johnny	42
Bernardino, Johnny	40	Hartnett, Leo (Gabby)	19	Pipp, Wally	13
Berg, Moe	20	Hassett, John (Buddy)	35	Plank, Edward	6
Blackwell, Ewell	44	Hatten, Joe	45	Raschi, Vic	43
Bluege, Ossie	20	Heffner, Don	35	Reese, Harold (Pee Wee)	4
Bonham, Ernie	38	Heilmann, Harry	14	Reynolds, Allie	43
Bottomley, Jim	19	Hemsley, Rollie	28	Rhem, Flint	21
Brazle, Alpha	43	Herman, Billy	32	Rixey, Eppa	13
Bresnahan, Roger	1	Herman, Floyd (Babe)	23	Rizzuto, Phil (Scooter)	42
Bridges, Tommy	29	Herzog, Charles	9	Robertson, Charles	18
Brouthers, Dan	2	Higbe, Kirby	37	Robinson, Wilbert	23
Brown, Bobby	45	Higgins, Mike (Pinky)	30	Rolfe, Robert (Red)	35
Brown, Mace	33	Hoag, Myril	31	Rommel, Ed	18
Brown, Mordecai	5	Hooper, Harry	9	Rosen, Al (Flip)	45
Bush, Guy	20	Hornsby, Rogers	1	Roush, Ed	13
Cadore, Leon	16	Hoyt, Waite	18	Rowe, Lynwood (Schoolboy)	32
Camilli, Dolf	33	Hubbell, Carl	28	Rucker, Nap	7
Cantwell, Ben	25	Jackson, Joe (Shoeless)	7	Rudolph, Dick	15
Carey, Max	10	Jackson, Travis	19	Ruether, Walter (Dutch)	17
Carleton, James (Tex)	32	James, William	15	Ruffing, Charles (Red)	21
Carrigan, Bill	6	Jennings, Hughie	2	Russell, Jim	46
Casey, Hugh	38	Jethroe, Sam	45	Russie, Amos	2
Cavarretta, Phil	40	Johnson, Robert	33	Russo, Marius	35
Chance, Frank	5	Johnson, Walter (Big Train)	7	Ruth, George Herman (Babe)	7
Chandler, Spurgeon (Spud)	35	Jolley, Smead	30	Ryan, John (Blondy)	28
Chapman, Ray	11	Jones, Sam P. (Sad Sam)	13	Sain, John	44
Chase, Hal	8	Joost, Eddie	42	Sallee, Harry (Slim)	10
Chesbro, Jack	1	Jorgens, Art	28	Schaefer, Germany	6
Cicotte, Ed	8	Jorgensen, John (Spider)	39	Schalk, Ray (Cracker)	12
Clark, Allie	47	Joss, Addie	6	Schang, Wally	14
Clarke, Fred	3	Jurges, Billy	31	Selkirk, George (Twinkletoes)	34
Clements, Jack	3	Keeler, Willie	4	Shea, Frank	47
Cobb, Tyrus Raymond (Ty)	7	Keller, Charles (King Kong)	35	Shocker, Urban	16
Cochrane, Mickey	21	Kelly, George	15	Shotton, Burton (Barney)	10
Collins, Jim (Rip)	31	Kerr, Dickie	18	Shoun, Clyde	36
Combs, Earle	21	Kerr, John (Buddy)	43	Shuba, George (Shotgun)	47
Coombs, Jack	8	Kinder, Ellis	46	Simmons, Al	21
Cooper, Mort	37	Kiner, Ralph	46	Sisler, George	15
Cooper, Walker	37	Klein, Charles (Chuck)	27	Sisti, Sebastian	44
Coveleski, Stan	13	Klein, Lou	38	Slaughter, Enos (Country)	41
Cox, Billy	42	Klem, Bill	24	Snodgrass, Fred	9
Cramer, Roger (Doc)	27	Kluftz, Clyde	43	Snyder, Frank (Pancho)	13
Crawford, Sam	4	Koenecke, Lon	33	Spalding, Albert	3
Critz, Hugh	21	Koenig, Mark	23	Speaker, Tristram (Tris)	7
Cronin, Joe	26	Konstanty, Jim	46	Stengel, Charles (Casey)	16
Crosetti, Frank	32	Kramer, Jack	43	Stephenson, Riggs	19
Crowder, Alvin	26	Kuhel, Joe	29	Stirnweiss, George	46
Cuccinello, Tony	29	La Jole, Larry (Nap)	4	Street, Charles (Gabby)	5
Cuyler, Hazen (Kiki)	19	Landis, Judge K. M.	33	Sturm, John	38
Dahlgren, Babe	34	Latham, Arlie	3	Suder, Pete	41
Daubert, Jacob (Jake)	11	Lazzeri, Tony	24	Suhr, Gus	29
Davis, Curt	34	Leiber, Henry (Hank)	33	Tamulis, Vito	34
Dean, Jay Hanna (Dizzy)	31	Leonard, Emil (Dutch)	44	Tebbetts, George (Birdie)	30
Dean, Paul (Daffy)	31	Leslie, Sam	28	Terry, Bill	22
DeBerry, John (Hank)	17	Lindell, John	44	Tesreau, Jeff	12
Delehanty, Ed	2	Lindstrom, Fred	22	Thompson, Fresco	23
Derringer, Paul	30	Lobert, Hans	5	Thompson, Hank	45
Dickey, Bill	26	Lombardi, Ernie	30	Thorpe, Jim	15
Diering, Chuck	47	Lopat, Ed	43	Tinker, Joe	5
Dietrich, William	33	Lopez, Al	26	Toporcer, George (Specs)	23
DiMaggio, Dom	36	Luque, Dolf	14	Traynor, Harold (Pie)	22
DiMaggio, Joe (Yankee Clipper)	36	Mack, Connie	2	Trosky, Hal	29
DiMaggio, Vince	36	Magee, Sherry	6	Turner, Jim	36
Donovan, Bill	4	Masi, Phil	44	Tyler, George	15
Doyle, Larry	8	Mancuso, Gus	28	Vance, Arthur (Dazzy)	15
Dugan, Joe	17	Manush, Henry (Heinie)	20	Vandermeer, John	38
Durocher, Leo	24	Maranville, Walter (Rabbit)	13	Vaughan, Floyd (Arky)	33
Earnshaw, George	27	Marion, Marty (Slat)	42	Veach, Bob	12
Ehmke, Howard	16	Marquard, Richard (Rube)	10	Verban, Emil	39
Evers, John	5	Martin, John (Pepper)	27	Vitt, Oscar	9
Feller, Bob (Rapid Robert)	40	Mathewson, Christy	6	Voiselle, Bill	38
Ferrell, Richard (Rick)	25	Mays, Carl	16	Vollmer, Clyde	43
Ferrell, Wesley (Wes)	26	McCarthy, Joe	24	Waddell, George (Rube)	1
Fitzsimmons, Fred	23	McGinnity, Joe (Ironman)	4	Wagner, Honus	3
Fletcher, Arthur	10	McGraw, John J.	1	Walker, Fred (Dixie)	41
Fournier, Jack	12	Medwick, Joe (Ducky)	32	Walsh, Edward (Big Ed)	5
Fox, Jimmy	27	Melillo, Oscar	25	Walters, William (Bucky)	30
Frisch, Frank	16	Merkle, Fred	8	Wambsganss, William	14
Garagiola, Joe	46	Meusel, Emil (Irish)	14	Waner, Lloyd (Little Poison)	25
Gardella, Danny	39	Milan, Clyde	8	Waner, Paul (Big Poison)	25
Gehrig, Lou	22	Miller, Edmund (Bing)	20	Warneke, Lon	29
Gehring, Charles	22	Miller, Otto	10	Wheat, Zack	10
Gelbert, Charles	28	Mize, John	40	Wilson, Hack	20
Gionfriddo, Al	38	Moore, Jo-Jo	32	Wilson, Jimmy	20
Gomez, Vernon (Lefty)	30	Moore, William (Wilcy)	25	Wood, Joe (Smokey)	9
Gordon, Joe (Flash)	37	Mueller, Ray	40	Wyatt, Whit	27
Gowdy, Hank	11	Mungo, Van Lingle	30	Zachary, Tom	17
Gray, Pete	39	Murphy, John	35	Zarilla, Al (Zeke)	46
Greenberg, Hank	31	Nehf, Art	17	Young, Denton (Cy)	3

Artist's conception of a ball game played at the Polo Grounds in 1886.

OLD TIMER'S PHOTO ALBUM

VOL. 1

PHOTOGRAPHS...

from the private collections of

Robert A. Cutter
and
William N. Jacobellis

TEXT...

William N. Jacobellis

ART AND LAYOUT...

Carl Wirshba

PRODUCTION...

Tom Walsh

DISTRIBUTION...

Manny Koenigsberg

Old Timer's Baseball Photo Album is the first of a series of albums about baseball's best-known and best-loved players and personalities.

Old Timer's Baseball Photo Album is the first in a series published by JKW SPORTS PUBLICATIONS, INC., 838 River Avenue, Bronx 51, N.Y. Responsibility cannot be assumed for unsolicited photos, manuscripts or art work. Contents must not be reproduced without permission. Printed in U.S.A. ©JKW Sports Publications, Inc., 1961.

CHAS. "CHIEF" BENDER was a famous Chippewa Indian who pitched for 16 seasons and won 206 games. Won 14 in a row in 1914. No-hit Cleveland 4-0 in 1910. Had highest A.L. percentages in 1910-11 and 1914. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1953.

RUBE WADDELL was a colorful southpaw who pitched in both leagues but who gained fame with the A's. Possessed tremendous speed, a great curve and near perfect control, and as a result was noted for his strikeout achievements. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1946.

ROGERS HORNSBY is considered by many to be the greatest hitter the N.L. has ever seen. Hit .400 three times, .424 in 1924. Was N.L. batting champion seven times. Has a lifetime average of .358, highest in N.L. history. Was MVP in 1925 and 1929. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1942.

JOHN MCGRAW was a great third baseman of the old Orioles and manager of the Giants 30 years. Won 10 pennants and three World Championships. Was elected to Hall of Fame in 1937.

ROGER BRESNAHAN was the battery mate of Christy Mathewson and one of the game's most natural players. Was one of the few catchers fast enough to be used as leadoff man. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1945.

JACK CHESBRO (center) is regarded as king of the spitball pitchers who won 192 games while losing 128. Won 41 games, tops in majors in 1904. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1946.

NICK ALTROCK won 23 games in three years with the White Sox but is known for his tenure and comedy antics with the Senators for whom he played 11 of his 18 years in the majors.

ED DELAHANTY was one of the game's greatest sluggers. Led N.L. hitters in 1899 with an average of .408. Led A.L. hitters with a mark of .376 in 1902. Made six hits in six times at bat twice during career and once smashed four home runs in a game. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1945.

DAN BROUTHERS was a hard hitting first baseman of eight major league clubs. Hit .419 for Detroit in 1887. Batted .300 or better for 15 years out of a 20 year career. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1945.

CAP ANSON was the greatest hitter and N.L. player-manager of the 19th century. Was a .300 hitter for 20 years, batting champion four times. Won five pennants. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1939.

AMOS RUSSIE was a famed fast-ball pitcher who won 20 or more games in each of the eight seasons he pitched for the Giants. Won 30 games four times, 37 in 1894. No-hit Brooklyn 6-0 in 1891.

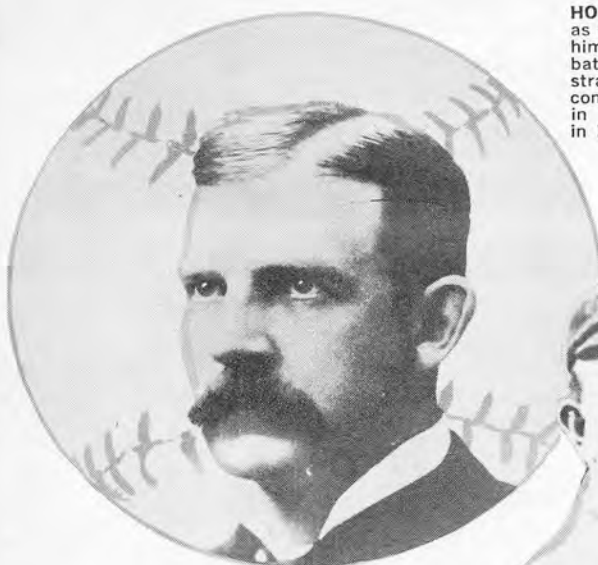

HUGHIE JENNINGS was a great shortstop of the old Orioles who hit .300 or better five consecutive times. Had a .386 and .397 average in 1896-97. Piloted Detroit to three championships. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1945.

CONNIE MACK broke into baseball as a catcher but is famed more as manager of the Philadelphia A's. Was the only manager the Athletics had from 1901 to 1950. Won nine pennants and five world championships. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1937.

HONUS WAGNER was regarded by John McGraw as the greatest player of all time. Many consider him the best all-around infielder ever. Led N.L. in batting eight times, never hit below .300 in 17 straight years. Played 100 or more games for 19 consecutive years. Stole more bases than anyone in league's history. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1936.

ALBERT SPALDING was the organizational genius of baseball's pioneer days. Was also a great pitcher winning 253 games while losing only 70 in eight seasons. Had a 56-5 record in 1875. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1939.

FRED CLARKE was the first of the successful "boy managers". Won four pennants for Pittsburgh and a World Championship in 1909. Starred as an outfielder for 22 seasons. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1945.

ARLIE LATHAM hit over .300 four times in his 17 season career. Was press box custodian at Yankee Stadium when this picture was made.

JACK CLEMENTS was one of the few lefthanded catchers to make the big league grade. Was a Phil's mainstay and gate attraction throughout the league for 13 years.

CY YOUNG was one of the pitching "Greats" of all times. Finished all but 67 of the 818 games he started, winning 511 and losing 307. Pitched three no-hitters, the last one being a "perfect game." Elected to Hall of Fame in 1937.

CLARK GRIFFITH was associated with major league baseball for more than 50 years, as a pitcher, manager, and executive. Compiled more than 200 victories as a pitcher. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1946.

"IRONMAN" JOE MCGINNITY was so named because he pitched two games in one day or five occasions winning both games three times. Won 20 or more games for seven seasons. Had a lifetime 247-139 record. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1946.

NAP LAJOIE was a truly great hitter who batted .300 or better 16 times. Was A.L. batting champ 1901-03-04. Hit .422 in 1901. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1937.

BILL DONOVAN won 25 games for Detroit in 1907. Became player-manager of Yankees 1915-16, non-playing manager of same team in 1917, and the Phils in 1921.

KID NICHOLS won 30 or more games for seven successive years. Won 20 or more for 10 straight years. One of the few pitchers to win more than 300 games, ending career with a 361-204 record. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1949.

SAM CRAWFORD was a great ball player and a fine hitter who batted .300 or better 11 times. Holds record for most triples, 312, and a lifetime batting average of .309. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1957.

WILLIE KEELER was baseball's greatest place-hitter and bunter. Was N. L. batting champion in 1897 and 1898. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1939.

JOE TINKER and JOHN EVERS were middlemen in the famed Cub infield of 1906-10. They starred in the ball park at the historic "West Side Grounds" where Tinker to Evers to Chance became synonymous with the double play and victory. Tinker later managed Cincinnati in 1913 and the Cubs in 1916. Evers managed the Cubs in 1921 and the White Sox in 1924. Was MVP in N.L. in 1914. Both were elected to Hall of Fame in 1946.

FRANK CHANCE was the famous Cubs first baseman (Tinker to Evers) and manager who piloted Chicago to pennants in 1906-07-08 and 1910 winning the world series in 1907-08. His 1906 team compiled 116 victories unequalled in major league history. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1946.

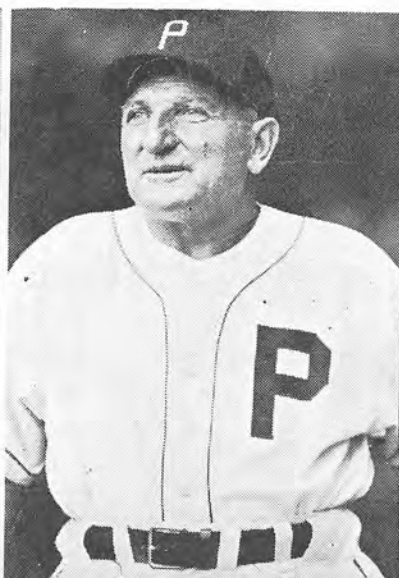

CHAS. "GABBY" STREET was manager of the Cardinals who led them to consecutive pennants in 1930-31, and the World's Championship in 1931.

HANS LOBERT was a star third baseman of the Phils 1911-14. Was non-playing manager of Phils in 1938 and 1942.

ED WALSH became an outstanding righthander for the White Sox 1904-16 thanks to a spitball he mastered in 1906. Won 40 games and pitched a 5-0 no-hitter in 1911. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1946.

MORDECAI BROWN won 239 games in an illustrious 15 year career. First to ever pitch four straight shut-outs. Defeated the great Mathewson nine consecutive times. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1949.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON was first pitcher of the century ever to win 30 games in three successive years. Won 37 in 1908, and 20 or more for 12 straight years. Had a lifetime record of 372-186. Pitched Giants to four pennants. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1936.

EDDIE PLANK once described as Connie Mack's meal ticket was one of the greatest lefthanded pitchers of the major leagues. Won 20 or more games eight times. Won 326 games in his 17 year career. Never pitched in the minors, going to the A's directly from Gettysburg College. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1946.

ADDIE JOSS pitched a 1-0 "perfect game" against the White Sox in 1908 and a 1-0 no-hitter against the same club in 1910. Won more than twenty games for Cleveland in 1906-07-08.

GERMANY SCHAEFER was an infielder who played 15 years in the A.L. serving with Chicago, Detroit, Washington and New York. Hit .334 for Washington in 1911.

SHERRY MAGEE starred in the outfield for the Phils, Braves and Reds. Batted over .300 six times and finished a 17 season career with a .291 average.

BILL CARRIGAN began and ended his ten-year career as a catcher with the Red Sox. Was non-playing manager of Boston in 1927-29.

TY COBB has been called both the greatest batter and the greatest player of all time. Hit over .400 three times while leading A.L. in batting 12 times. Stole 892 bases in his career, 96 in 1915. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1936.

BABE RUTH has been the greatest drawing card in history of game who launched big-time baseball into a new era of glory. Holder of many home run and other batting records. Nicknamed the "SULTAN OF SWAT" he smashed 729 homers, 60 in 1927. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1936.

TRIS SPEAKER was the greatest centerfielder of his day. Batted over .300 for 10 straight years and 18 out of 22 seasons. Has lifetime average of .344. Piloted Cleveland to its first pennant and World's Championship in 1920. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1937.

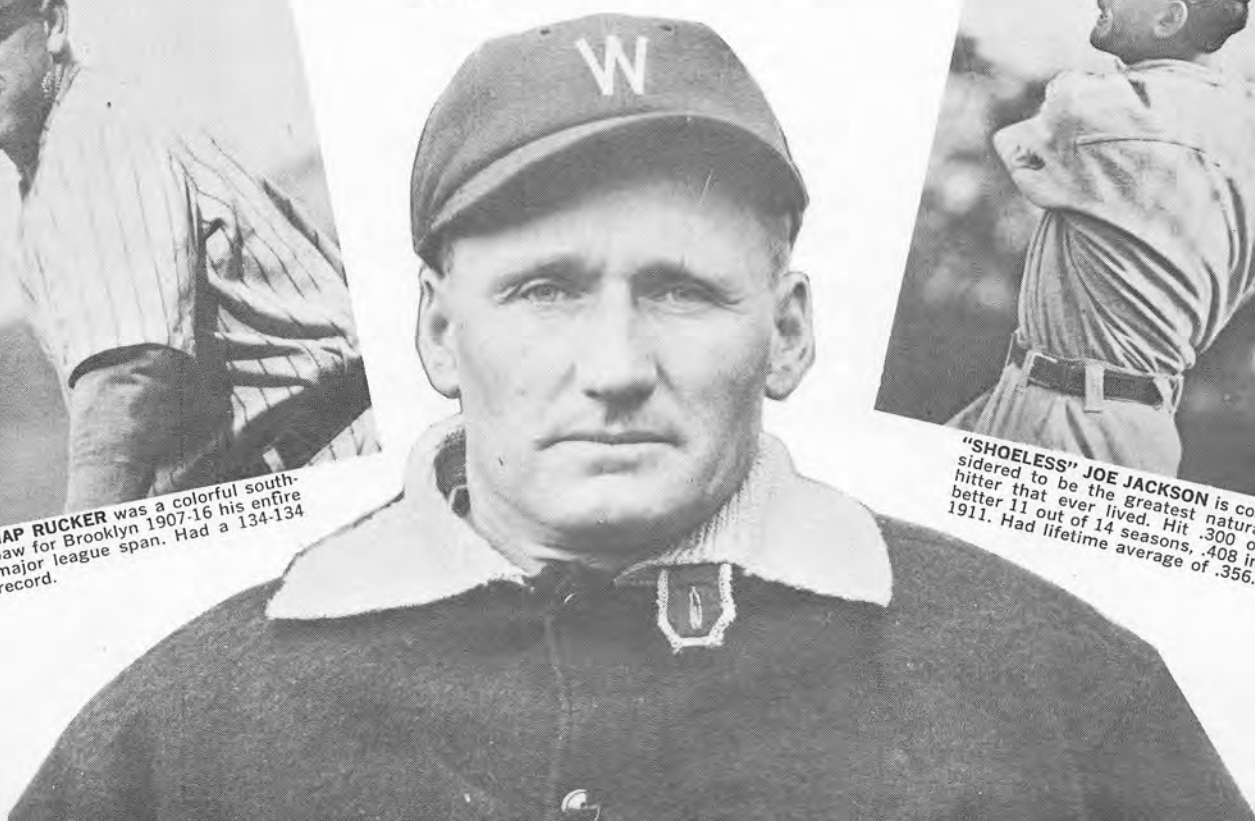

WALTER JOHNSON is conceded to be fastest ball pitcher in history of game. In 21 year career compiled 3497 strikeouts, an all-time major league record. Was strikeout leader of league for 12 years. Pitched 113 shutouts, three in four days in 1908. Won 414 games. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1936.

NAP RUCKER was a colorful south-paw for Brooklyn 1907-16 his entire major league span. Had a 134-134 record.

"SHOELESS" JOE JACKSON is considered to be the greatest natural hitter that ever lived. Hit .300 or better 11 out of 14 seasons, .408 in 1911. Had lifetime average of .356.

FRED MERKLE played 18 years in the majors, 12 with McGraw's Giants. Batted .309 and .385 in 1912 and 1925.

JACK COOMBS who was an unusually good batter for a pitcher was also an unusually good pitcher. Won 31-28-21 games in 1910-11-12. Pitched 13 shutouts in 1910. Was non-playing manager of Phils in 1919.

ED CICOTTE broke in with Detroit in 1905 but achieved his greatest successes with the White Sox 1912-20. Won 28, 29, 21 games in 1917-19-20. No-hit Browns 4-0 in 1916.

LARRY DOYLE was a fine, popular second baseman of McGraw's Giants. Played 13 of his 15 seasons with New York. Hit .300 or more six times and finished with a lifetime average of .290.

HAL CHASE is considered by many the greatest fielding first baseman the game has ever seen. His ability with the glove was such that it detracted from his hitting and base-stealing ability. Batted over .300 five times, stole 40 bases in 1910.

CLYDE MILAN was a speedy outfielder nicknamed "deerfoot" who spent his entire 16 season career with Washington, managing them in 1922. Stole 88 and 74 bases in 1912-13. Was a coach with Washington when he died in 1953.

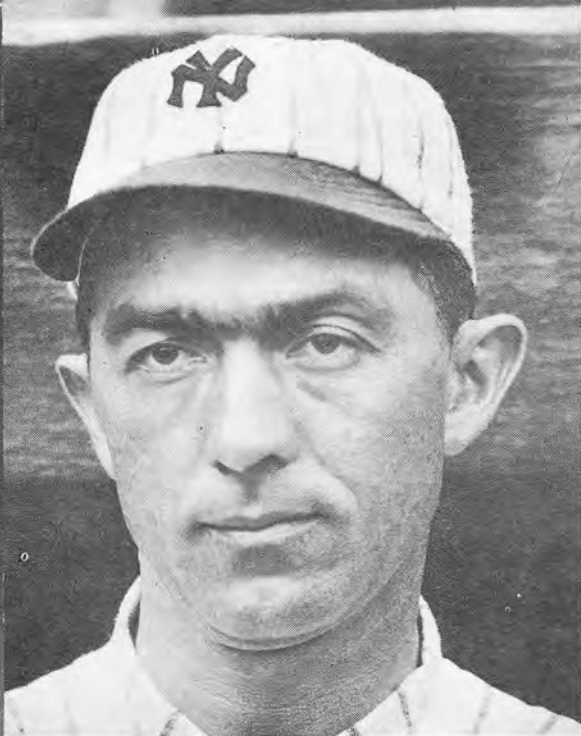

OSSIE VITT played 10 years in the majors, seven with Detroit and three with Boston (A). Was non-playing manager of Cleveland 1938-40. Now spends the summer months managing the U.S. All-Stars in the annual Hearst Championship Sandlot Games.

"SMOKEY" JOE WOOD earned his nickname because of his fastball. Pitched a 5-0 no-hitter against the Browns in 1911 the year he won 23 games. Had a 34-5 record in 1912. Finished career with a 115-57 record.

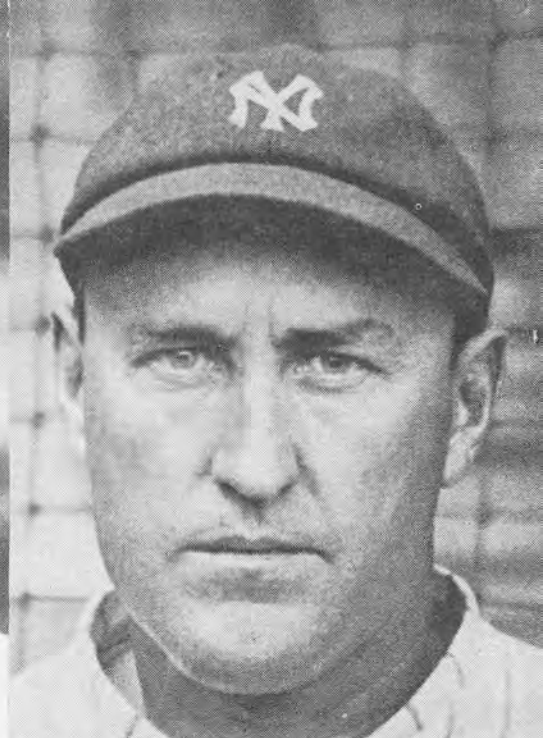

FRANK BAKER was a member of Connie Mack's famous $100,000 infield. Led A.L. in home-runs 1911-12-13, tied in 1914. Won two world series games from Giants in 1911 with home-runs, thus earning name "Home Run Baker." Is a frequent guest at the annual Old Timer's Day at the Yankee Stadium. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1955.

FRED SNODGRASS was another of the fast baserunners who helped the Giants to pennants in 1911-12-13. Finished a 10 season career with a batting average of .275.

BUCK HERZOG was one of five fast baserunners whose pilfering antics literally stole the pennants for the 1911-12-13 Giants. Was traded to Cincinnati and managed the Reds 1914-16. Was traded back to the Giants with Wade Killefer for Roush, McKechnie and Mathewson who then became Cincinnati's manager.

HARRY HOOPER played 12 consecutive seasons for the Red Sox. Was traded to White Sox in 1921 and ended career with them. Batted .312; .327; .304 in 1920-21-22. Had a lifetime mark of .281.

MAX CAREY was a brilliant baserunner who led N.L. in stolen bases in 1913-15-16-17-18-20-22-23-24 and 1925. Played 17 years with Pittsburgh and four with Brooklyn. Hit .300 or better eight times. Was non-playing manager of Brooklyn 1932-33.

RUBE MARQUARD cost the Giants $11,000 in 1908 a colossal sum of money then. Became a big winner in 1911 with a 24-7 record. Won 26 games, 19 consecutively, in 1912. Won 19 games for Cincinnati in 1917. No-hit Brooklyn 2-0 in 1915.

ART FLETCHER was a scrappy jut-jawed shortstop who helped spark the Giants to pennants in 1911-12-13. Was a coach with the Yankees under manager Joe McCarthy.

OTTO MILLER began and ended his 13 season career with Brooklyn. Caught Leon Cadore in the longest game ever played in the majors, a 26 inning 1-1 tie on May 1, 1920.

BURT SHOTTON (left, below), a close friend of Branch Rickey, is best remembered by latter day fans as non-playing manager of the 1947-50 Dodgers. Was a fine outfielder for the St. Louis Browns 1909-23.

SLIM SALLEE pitched for three clubs in his 16 year N.L. career, St. Louis, New York and Cincinnati. Had a 174-143 record.

ZACH WHEAT was a "picture hitter" who played 18 years with the Dodgers and possesses most of the club's batting records. Collected 2,884 hits while batting over .300 14 times. Hit .375 twice. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1959.

GROVER CLEVELAND ALEXANDER was a great pitcher for two decades playing for the Phils, Cubs and Cardinals. Won 30 or more games three times, 20 or more nine times. Hurlled four one-hit games in 1914. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1938.

ROGER PECKINPAUGH played 18 years in the majors with Cleveland, New York, Washington and Chicago. Owns a .259 lifetime batting average.

JAKE DAUBERT was a great first baseman for Brooklyn 1910-18, and for Cincinnati 1919-1924. Batted .300 or better 10 times, six consecutively. Ended career with a .303 lifetime average.

STEVE O'NEILL was a scrappy competitor who caught for Cleveland 13 years. Was non-playing manager of Cleveland 1935-37; Detroit 1943-48; Red Sox 1950-51 and Phils 1952-54.

RAY CHAPMAN was a versatile infielder with Cleveland 1912-20. Hit .300 or better four times.

HANK GOWDY was the first ball player to enlist in World War I. Hit .300 or better six times. Was non-playing manager of Cincinnati in 1946.

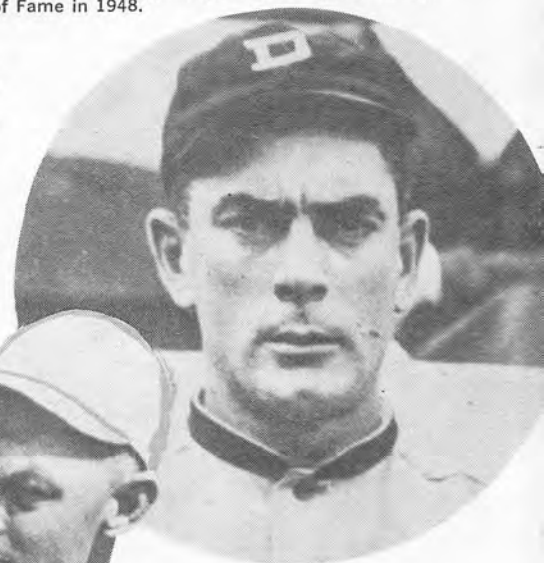

JACK FOURNIER was a clever N.L. veteran when he joined Brooklyn in 1923 whose heavy hitting solved Mgr. Robinson's first base problems. He hit .351 that year. Hit .300 or better eight times in his 15 year career. Led league in homers with 27 while compiling a .334 average in 1924.

HERB PENNOCK was a southpaw who came up with the A's in 1912 but became a big winner with Boston in 1919. Traded to the Yankees in 1923, he won 115 games in six seasons. Had a 243-161 record for his major league career. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1948.

BOB VEACH starred in the outfield for Detroit 1912-1923 batting over .300 nine times, .355 in 1919. Later played for the Red Sox, Yankees and Washington. His 16 season batting average is .310.

JEFF TESREAU started and ended a seven season career with the Giants winning 115 games while losing 72. Won 22 and 26 games in 1913 and 1914.

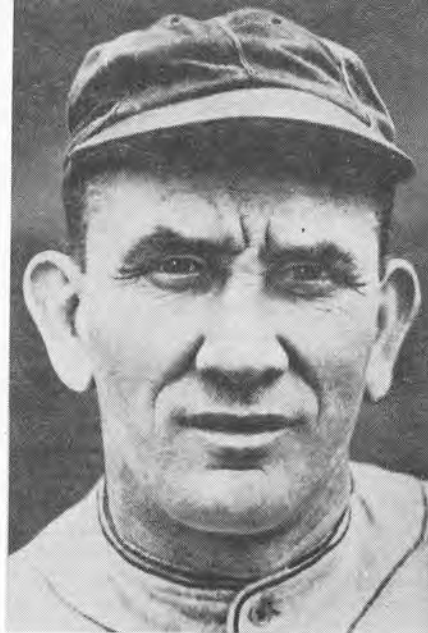

RAY SCHALK played 18 of his 19 season career with the White Sox. Was a smart and smooth receiver who caught 1760 games, including four no-hitters and Charley Robertson's "perfect game" in 1922. Holds record for most chances accepted. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1955.

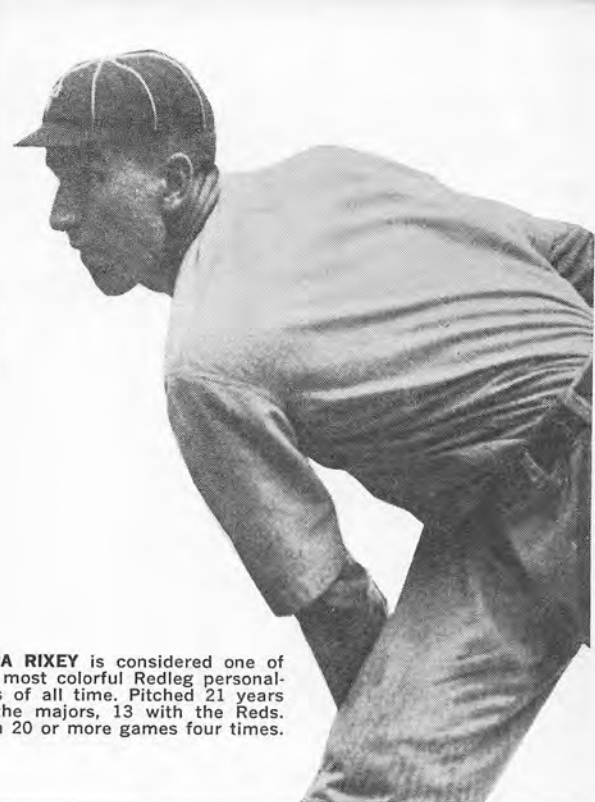

SAM P. JONES is the original Jones boy to be dubbed "Sad Sam." Pitched for Cleveland, Boston, New York, St. Louis, Washington and Chicago (A) in his 22 season career. Compiled a 229-216 record which included a 2-0 no-hitter against the Athletics.

WALLY PIPP came to the Yankees from Detroit for the $7500 waiver price in 1915. He starred for them until June of 1925 when a beaming forced him out of the lineup. He was replaced by a rookie, Lou Gehrig who then began his record consecutive game skein. Pipp led the A. L. in fielding in 1915 and 1917, putouts in 1915-19-20-22 and home runs in 1916-17.

RABBIT MARANVILLE was a small and scrappy pepper-pot who cavorted in N.L. infields for 23 years playing more games at shortstop (2153) than any other player. His at bat total of 10,078 was surpassed only by Honus Wagner. Member of 1914 "Miracle Braves." Elected to Hall of Fame in 1954.

EPPA RIXEY is considered one of the most colorful Redleg personalities of all time. Pitched 21 years in the majors, 13 with the Reds. Won 20 or more games four times.

ED ROUSH is regarded as the greatest Cincinnati player of all time, whose fielding and hitting ability has never been excelled. Hit better than .300 11 consecutive years. Won the league's batting title in 1917 and 1919 and missed the crown in 1918 by only two points.

PANCHO SNYDER was a veteran of 17 years in the N.L. nine with St. Louis and eight with New York. Was the catcher on the 1921-22-23-24 Giants, regarded as McGraw's greatest teams.

STAN COVELESKI (right) a spitball right-hander who won 93 games in four years with Cleveland. Pitched three complete five hit victories against Brooklyn in the 1920 world series.

WILLIAM WAMBSGANSS was Cleveland's second baseman who executed an unassisted triple play against Brooklyn in the 1920 world series. He became the eighth and last player in major league history to accomplish this feat.

EMIL (Irish) MEUSEL was traded by the Phils to the Giants in mid-season of 1921 and became their most consistent run producer for the next four years. Hit over .300 six times, had a lifetime average of .310.

WALLY SCHANG was a good A.L. receiver for 19 seasons who caught 1840 games. Hit over .300 four consecutive times and had a lifetime average of .284.

HARRY HEILMANN was a truly great hitter who won the A.L. batting title in 1921-23-25-27. Hit .300 or better 12 straight times, .403 in 1923. Had a lifetime average of .342. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1952.

DOLF LUQUE was a member of Cincinnati's top notch pitching staff which won the 1919 pennant and world series. Was star of the three man staff of 1923 when he won 27 games. Is more recently remembered for his effective relief pitching in the fifth and last game of the 1933 world series when he induced Cliff Bolton to hit into a double play and end a Washington threat, his Giants becoming World Champions.

JIM THORPE was not as awe inspiring on the diamond as he was on the gridiron and in the Olympics. Had a six season batting average of .252.

GEORGE KELLY was a first baseman who hit better than .300 with the 1921-24 Giants teams which catapulted McGraw to his ultimate heights. Set a record by hitting seven home-runs in six consecutive games in 1923.

GEORGE SISLER holds two A.L. records. Made 257 hits in 1920 and batted .420 in 1922. Hit .300 or better 13 out of 16 seasons. Also credited with being one of best two fielding first basemen. His sons Dick and Dave made the big leagues. George, who is a close friend of Branch Rickey, was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1939.

DAZZY VANCE was a burly florid-faced righthander with a fast ball that made him a strikeout king of the majors. Fanned more than 2,000 batters while in the big time. Led N.L. hurlers in strikeouts seven straight years. Pitched a 10-1 no-hitter against Phils in 1925. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1955.

DICK RUDOLF, BILL JAMES and GEORGE TYLER constituted the "BIG THREE" of the 1914 "Miracle Braves," winning 69 games among them while the rest of the staff accounted for but 25 wins.

Rudolph beat the Athletics twice in the world series, the first and fourth games, while James and Tyler won the second and third games. This dependable trio held the A's to a collective BA of .172. Connie Mack was so shocked by this sweep that in the following year he broke up his star studded squad, the famed $100,000 infield included.

CARL MAYS was a fine righthander who won 20 or more games five times while pitching for the Red Sox, Yankees and Reds. Finished a 16 season career with a 204-127 record.

CASEY STENGEL was once described by Branch Rickey as "the most uninhibited ball player I ever knew." Ole Case compiled a spectacular managerial record with the Yanks from 1949-60. Won 10 pennants (to tie McGraw) and seven World Championships (to tie Joe McCarthy).

HOWARD EHMKE pitched a 4-0 no-hitter for Boston against the Athletics, but is mostly remembered as the surprise starter for the Athletics against the Cubs in the 1929 world series. In that game he beat Chicago and fanned 13 batters, then a new series record.

FRANK FRISCH who was famed as the "Fordham Flash" was an outstanding infielder, baserunner, and batter. He holds many records and has a lifetime batting average of .316. Late in his playing career was considered the best money player in the game. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1947.

LEON CADORE helped pitch the 1920 "Robins" to the pennant. Is most remembered for the 26 innings—tie game he pitched against Joe Oeschger and the Braves on May 1, 1920.

BURLEIGH GRIMES pitched 23 years in the majors achieving his greatest fame with Brooklyn. Was the last big leaguer allowed to pitch the spitball legally. Won over 20 games five times. Was non-playing manager of Brooklyn 1937-38.

URBAN SHOCKER came up with the Yankees in 1916 but had his best years with the Browns 1918-24. Won 120 games for the Browns and was traded back to the Yanks with whom he finished his career.

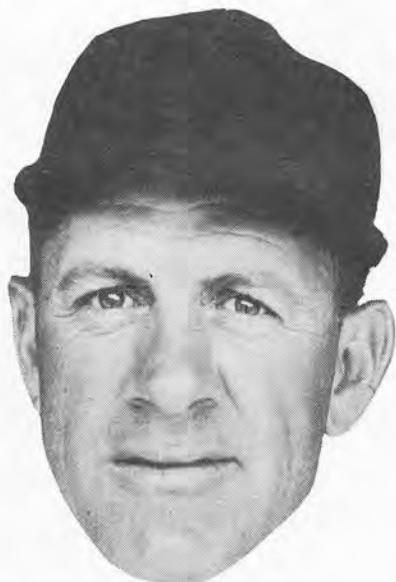

LEFTY O'DOUL started career as a pitcher with Yankees in 1919 but became an outfielder with the Giants in 1928 and a star with the Phils in 1929-30 when he hit .398 and .383. Was traded to Brooklyn in 1931 for whom he hit .336, .368 and .252. Returned to Giants in 1933 and hit .306 and .316. Resides in San Francisco where he's a prominent sports figure and celebrity.

"JUMPING" JOE DUGAN played with the A's, Yanks, Red Sox and Tigers. Best remembered for his seven year tenure with New York. Had a lifetime batting average of .263.

CHARLEY GRIMM was a great first baseman for the Pirates 1919-1924 and a mainstay with the Cubs 1925-36. Hit over .300 six times and finished career with 2,299 hits and a .290 lifetime average. Led N.L. in fielding seven times, making only 163 errors during his 20 year career.

TOM ZACHARY hurled 23 years in the majors. Pitched home-run balls #2, 22, 36 and 60 to Babe Ruth in 1927 when the Bambino established his record. Pitched for the Yankees in 1929 and had a 12-0 record.

DUTCH RUETHER pitched for Cincinnati, Brooklyn, Washington and New York (A) in his 13 year career. Won 21 games in 1922 and compiled a lifetime mark of 138-95.

ART NEHF was a crafty southpaw who won 60 games for the 1920-21-22 Giants. Beat the Yankees in the final games of the 1921-22 world series and the third game of the 1923 series.

HANK DeBERRY was bought by owner Charles Ebbets from New Orleans in 1922 in a package deal which also included Dazzy Vance. This was the start of the famous battery that became the toast of Brooklyn.

JESS HAINES was a veteran of 19 seasons in the N.L. 18 with the Cardinals. Won 20 games in 1923 and 1928. Won 24 in 1927. Beat Yankees twice in the 1926 world series.

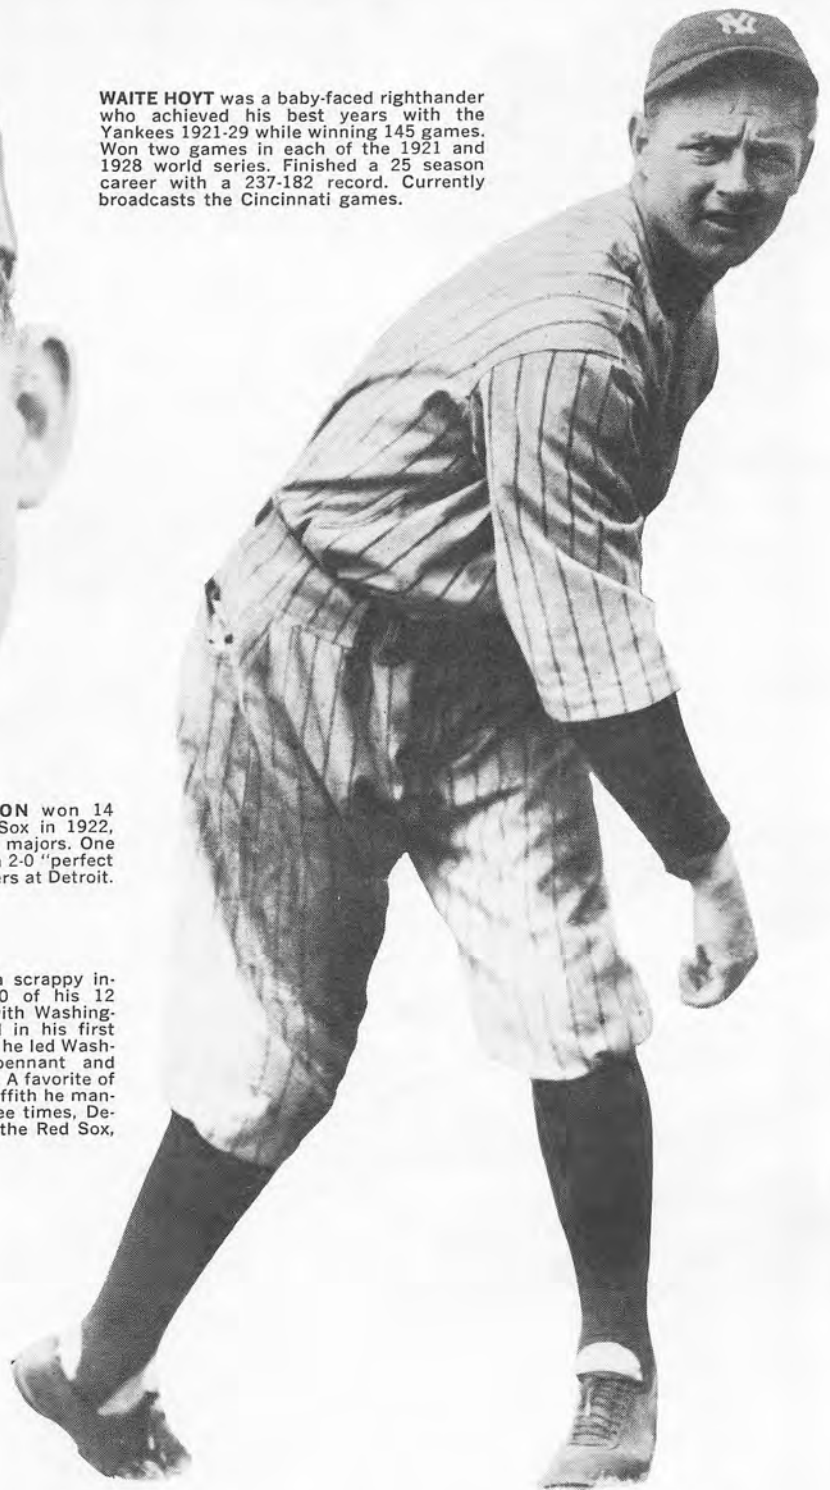

WAITE HOYT was a baby-faced righthander who achieved his best years with the Yankees 1921-29 while winning 145 games. Won two games in each of the 1921 and 1928 world series. Finished a 25 season career with a 237-182 record. Currently broadcasts the Cincinnati games.

CHARLES ROBERTSON won 14 games for the White Sox in 1922, his second year in the majors. One of these victories was a 2-0 "perfect game" against the Tigers at Detroit.

BUCKY HARRIS was a scrappy infielder who played 10 of his 12 years in the majors with Washington. Was only 27 and in his first year as manager when he led Washington to its first pennant and World's Championship. A favorite of former owner Clark Griffith he managed the Senators three times, Detroit twice, as well as the Red Sox, Phils and Yankees.

DICKIE KERR helped pitch the 1920 White Sox to the pennant by winning 21 games, then twice beat Cincinnati in the world series. Was Stan Musial's first manager and encouraged him to become an outfielder after he had injured his pitching arm.

ED ROMMEL pitched for Connie Mack and played his entire 13 year career with the A's. Won 27 games in 1922. Beat the Cubs in the fourth game of the 1929 series. Is now an umpire in the A.L.

BENNY BENGOUGH caught for the Yankees for eight seasons and with the Browns for two. Was a coach with the Newark Bears when they were the scourge of the Int. League. More recently, was also a coach with the Phillies.

GABBY HARTNETT was a 20 year veteran of the N.L. 19 with the Cubs for whom he starred behind the plate. Won the 1938 pennant with his famous "twilight" home-run against the Pirates. Caught 100 or more games per season for 12 years, eight in succession. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1955.

JIM BOTTOMLEY was a truly great hitter and first baseman who starred for the Cardinals 1922-1932 when he hit .300 or better nine times. Hit seven homers in five straight games in 1929. Drove in 12 runs in a game at Ebbets Field in 1924. Had a life-time .309 batting average.

KIKI CUYLER was a great outfielder for the Pirates and Cubs, as well as a feared batsman. Hit .300 or better 10 times, .369 in 1929. Finished a 19 season career with a .321 average.

TRAVIS JACKSON began and ended a 15 season career with the Giants. Starred at shortstop under McGraw and Terry. Hit .300 or better six times and had a .290 lifetime average.

RIGGS STEPHENSON was a great hitter who broke in with Cleveland but became a star with the Cubs. Batted over .300 12 times, eight consecutively. Had a .378 average for nine world series games and a lifetime mark of .336.

BING MILLER was a great outfielder during his 17 season career in the majors and starred for Connie Mack's A's 12 years. Batted .300 or more nine times, .342 in 1924. Holds a lifetime .312 average.

HEINIE MANUSH was a great hitting outfielder who batted .300 or better 13 times in a 19 season career, eight times consecutively and .378 in 1928. Had a lifetime average of .331.

JIMMY WILSON was recognized as a smart and aggressive receiver during his 19 year career in the majors. Was first string catcher on the 1931 Cardinals regarded as the best St. Louis team ever. Finished career in 1940 with the pennant winning Redlegs.

GUY BUSH pitched 12 of his 18 seasons in the N.L. with Chicago. Won 20 games in 1933. Finished with a 176-136 record.

HACK WILSON was a slugging N.L. outfielder whose greatest years were with Chicago. Batted .300 or better five straight years with the Cubs. Smashed 56 home-runs in 1930, the year he hit .356. Had a lifetime average of .307.

MOE BERG played in the majors 16 years beginning in 1923. Switched from an infielder to catcher in 1927. Is a well educated man and a fluent linguist.

OSSIE BLUEGE was a smooth infielder who played his entire 18 year span in the Washington infield. Was non-playing manager of the Senators 1943-47.

RED RUFFING (below) was the mainstay of the Yankee pitching staff from 1930-1942 when he won 209 games. He was also a fine batter and was frequently used as a pinch-hitter.

EARLE COMBS was a great center-fielder for the Yankees and batted over .300 nine times during a twelve season career. Had a lifetime batting average of .325. Became a coach with the Red Sox when Joe McCarthy became their manager.

MICKEY COCHRANE was a fiery competitor and regarded as one of the greatest catchers of all times. Was the spark of the Athletics championship teams of 1929-30-31 with a batting average of .346. Led Detroit to two pennants and a world series title in 1935. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1947.

AL SIMMONS was a fine outfielder who attained stardom with the Athletics. Became a feared batsman despite an unorthodox batting stance and hit over .300 15 times, eleven consecutively. Compiled a lifetime batting average of .334.

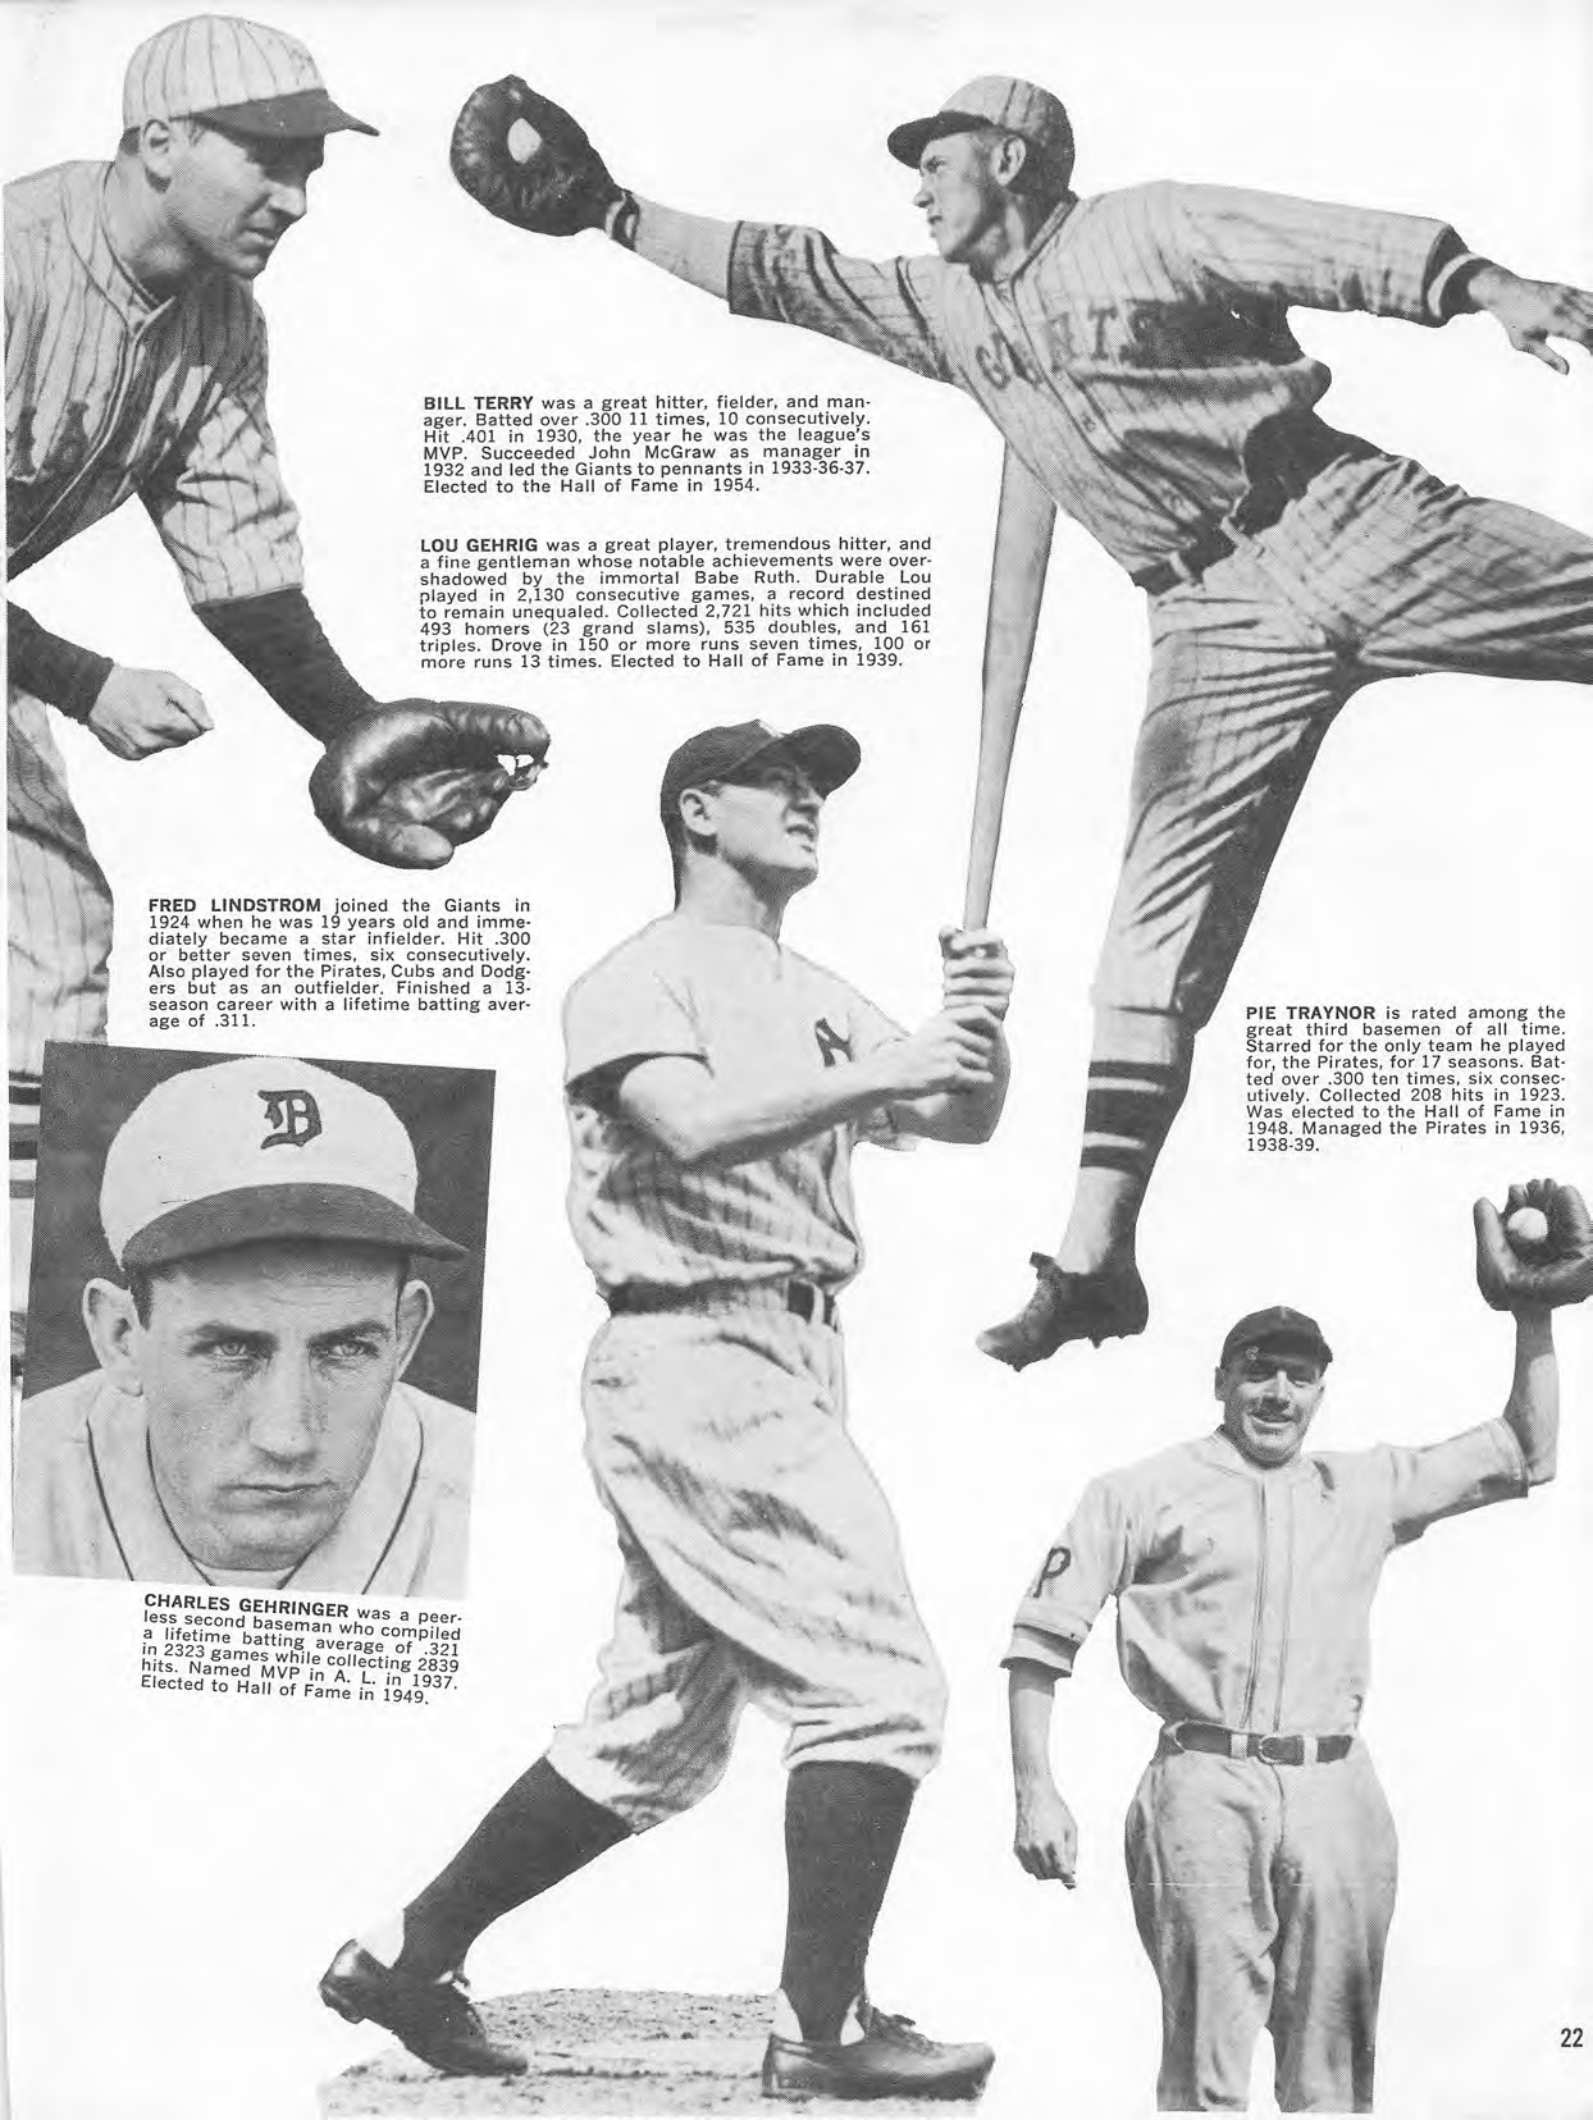

FLINT RHEM was a righthander who spent his 14-season career in the N. L. pitching for the Cards, Phils and Braves. Compiled a 105-97 record.

HUGH CRITZ was a velvet smooth fielding second baseman who helped establish the league double play record of 194 for Cincinnati in 1928. Starred in the New York Giants infield 1930-1935.

BILL TERRY was a great hitter, fielder, and manager. Batted over .300 11 times, 10 consecutively. Hit .401 in 1930, the year he was the league's MVP. Succeeded John McGraw as manager in 1932 and led the Giants to pennants in 1933-36-37. Elected to the Hall of Fame in 1954.

LOU GEHRIG was a great player, tremendous hitter, and a fine gentleman whose notable achievements were overshadowed by the immortal Babe Ruth. Durable Lou played in 2,130 consecutive games, a record destined to remain unequalled. Collected 2,721 hits which included 493 homers (23 grand slams), 535 doubles, and 161 triples. Drove in 150 or more runs seven times, 100 or more runs 13 times. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1939.

FRED LINDSTROM joined the Giants in 1924 when he was 19 years old and immediately became a star infielder. Hit .300 or better seven times, six consecutively. Also played for the Pirates, Cubs and Dodgers but as an outfielder. Finished a 13-season career with a lifetime batting average of .311.

PIE TRAYNOR is rated among the great third basemen of all time. Starred for the only team he played for, the Pirates, for 17 seasons. Batted over .300 ten times, six consecutively. Collected 208 hits in 1923. Was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1948. Managed the Pirates in 1936, 1938-39.

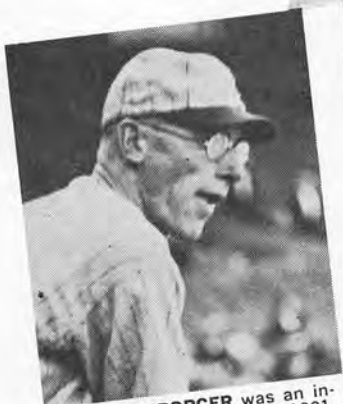

CHARLES GEHRINGER was a peerless second baseman who compiled a lifetime batting average of .321 in 2323 games while collecting 2839 hits. Named MVP in A. L. in 1937. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1949.

FRED FITZSIMMONS was a fine pitcher for twenty seasons whose main stock in trade was a knuckle ball. Starred for the Giants and Dodgers and compiled a 217-146 record. Was non-playing manager of the Phils 1943-45. Has also been pitching coach of the Giants, Cubs and Kansas City A's. Was also a front office executive of the Brooklyn Football Dodgers in the defunct All America Conference.

BABE HERMAN (left) played for the Dodgers from 1926 to 1931 and again in 1945. In 1930 he had the greatest single year any Brooklyn hitter ever had. He batted .393 and established team records in runs scored, base hits, total bases, home runs and runs-batted-in. He also played for the Reds, Cubs, Pirates and Tigers. Batted over .300 nine times and compiled a 13-season batting average of .323.

WILBERT ROBINSON, who was a star catcher for the original Baltimore Orioles, and later a coach for the Giants, serving under John McGraw, his former teammate, became manager of Brooklyn in 1914. He piloted the team until 1931 and was such a fixture at Ebbetts Field that the fans called his team the "Robins." He was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1945.

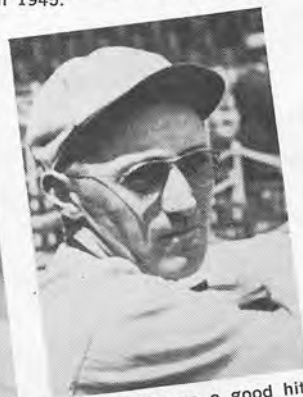

GEORGE TOPORCER was an infielder with the Cardinals 1921-27. Was nicknamed "Specs" because he was the first ball player to wear eye-glasses while in uniform. Despite a subsequent loss of sight he is still a keen student and follower of the game and a tremendous study in courage.

WILD BILL HALLAHAN pitched for the Cardinals, Reds and Phils during his 14-year tenure in the National League. Finished career with a 102-94 record.

FRESCO THOMPSON saw service with the Pirates, Giants, Phils and Dodgers. Compiled a nine-season batting average of .298. Currently is vice-president of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

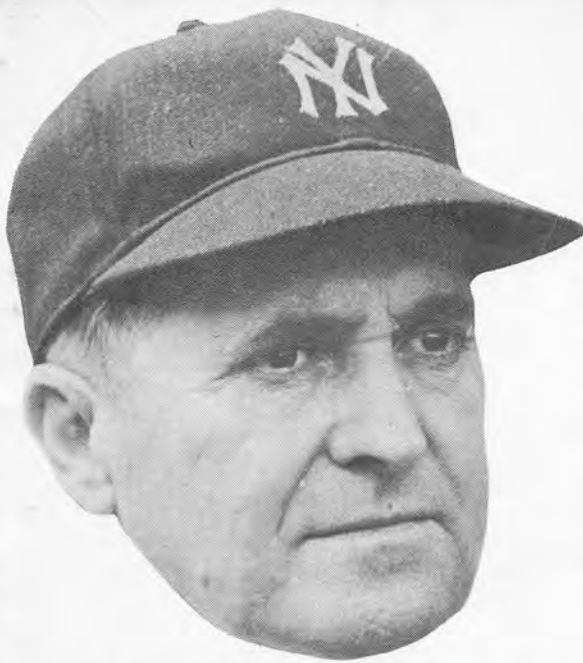

CHICK HAFEY was a good hitting outfielder for the Cardinals and Reds. Although he wore glasses he batted over .300 nine times, 7 consecutively. Had a lifetime batting average of .317.

MEL OTT, one of the greatest and most popular players ever to wear a New York Giants uniform, was one of the few players to jump from a high school team directly into the majors. Holds the all-time N. L. record for homers, 511. Also holds record for runs scored, runs batted in, total bases, bases on balls, and extra bases on long hits. Was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1951. An untimely death in 1958, the result of an automobile accident, deprived the baseball world of one of its finest gentlemen.

JOE MCCARTHY was an outstanding manager who never played in the major leagues. Won pennants with the Cubs in 1929 and with the Yankees in 1932-6-7-8-9, 1941-2-3. Won seven World's Championships, four consecutively. Was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1937.

LEO DUROCHER was a fine fielding shortstop who later became a great non-playing manager. Broke in with the Yankees in 1925 but came into his own with the 1933-37 Cardinals. Piloted the Dodgers to their first flag in 21 years (1941) and followed that with a pennant for the 1951 Giants. Next, led the Giants to the pennant and World's Championship in 1954. Was hired by the L. A. Dodgers on Jan. 9, 1961 to be third base coach for the forthcoming season.

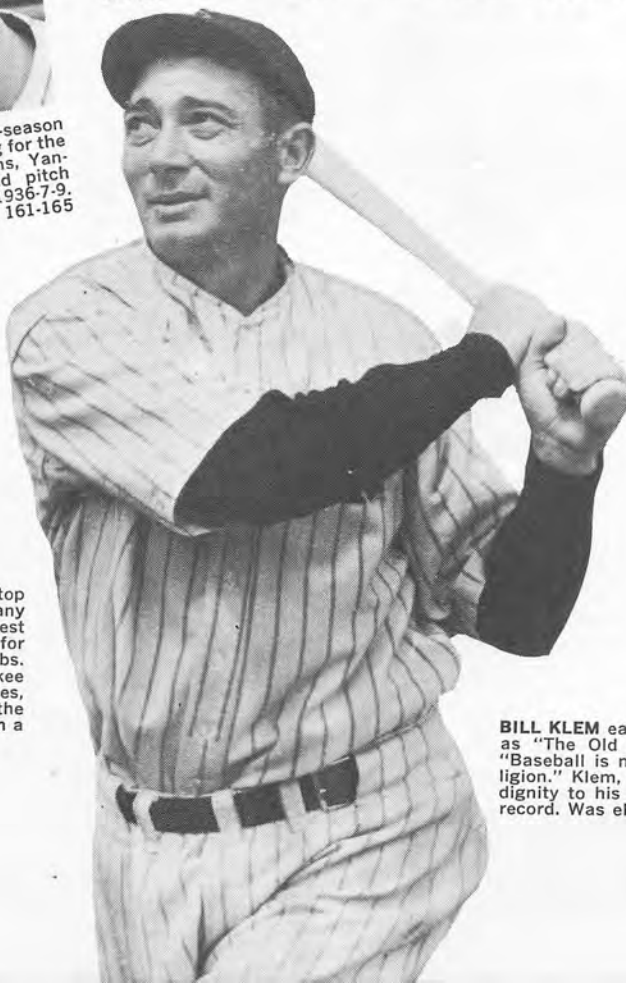

LEFTY GROVE won 300 games over a span of 17 years. Won 20 or more games eight times. In 1931 had a 31-4 record winning 16 straight. Won 79 games for the pennant-winning A's of 1929-30-31. Led A. L. in strikeouts seven straight seasons. Was league's MVP in 1931. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1947.

BUMP HADLEY spent his 17-season major league career pitching for the Senators, White Sox, Browns, Yankees and Athletics. Helped pitch the Yanks to pennants in 1936-7-9. Finished career with a 161-165 record.

TONY LAZZERI was a great second baseman for the Yankees 1926-1937, batting over .300 five times. Sparked them to pennants in 1926-27-28-32-36 and 37. Hit 66 homers in one season (1925) for Salt Lake City, a feat that caught the eyes of Yankee scouts.

MARK KOENIG (left) was shortstop for the 1927 Yankees, whom many an old-timer regards as the greatest Yankee team ever. Also played for the Tigers, Reds, Giants and Cubs. Played against his former Yankee teammates in the 1932 world series, who were incensed because the Cubs allegedly had not voted him a full world series share.

BILL KLEM earned an immortal niche in baseball as "The Old Arbitrator" because of his credo, "Baseball is more than a game to me—it's a religion." Klem, who brought authority, respect and dignity to his job, umpired in 18 world series, a record. Was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1953.

PAUL WANER, older brother of Lloyd, was nicknamed "Big Poison," and not without reason. Hit .300 or better 14 times, 12 consecutively. One of seven players ever to garner 3,000 or more hits. Set modern N. L. record by collecting 200 or more hits eight times. Was league batting champ in 1927-1934 and 1936. Was MVP in 1927 and was selected four times for the All Star Game. Was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1952.

LLOYD WANER, who was nicknamed "Little Poison," was just that to N. L. pitchers. Batted .355 in 1927, his rookie year, with the Pirates. Batted .300 or better 12 times, six consecutively. Finished an 18-season career with a lifetime batting average of .316.

OSCAR MELILLO was a dependable second baseman for the Browns 1926-34 and for the Red Sox 1935-37. Was non-playing manager of the Browns in 1938. Also served a term as a coach with the Indians under Mgr. Lou Boudreau, a personal friend.

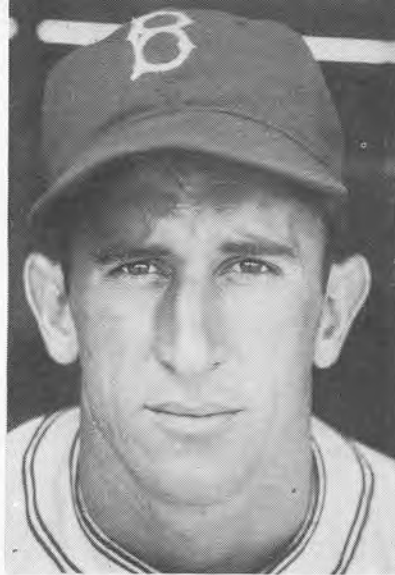

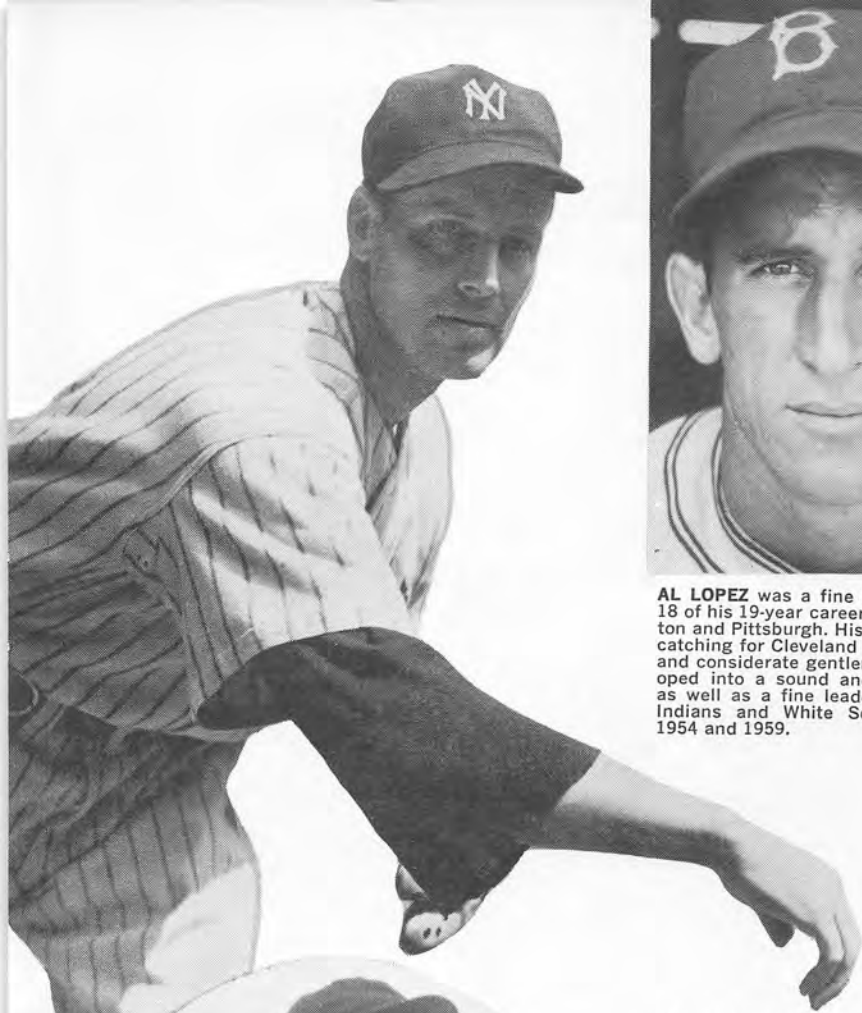

WILCY MOORE had a great rookie year with the 1927 Yankees, winning 19 and losing but 7 games. His next six years failed to come up to his first year's performance and he finished his career with a 51-44 record.

RICK FERRELL was a solid and dependable receiver for 21 years, who caught for the Browns, Red Sox and Senators. Batted over .300 six times. Currently is Vice-President and General Manager of the Detroit Tigers.

BEN CANTWELL (right) pitched for the Giants, Braves and Dodgers. Is best remembered for the nine years he toiled with Boston, enjoying his best season in 1933 with a 20-10 record. Finished career with a 76-108 mark.

AL LOPEZ was a fine catcher who played 18 of his 19-year career with Brooklyn, Boston and Pittsburgh. His last year was spent catching for Cleveland in 1947. Is a tactful and considerate gentleman who has developed into a sound and popular manager as well as a fine leader of men. Led the Indians and White Sox to pennants in 1954 and 1959.

WES FERRELL, younger brother of Rick, was a fine pitcher who might have become an A. L. great had he not possessed an explosive temperament. Won 20 or more games six times, four seasons consecutively. No-hit the Browns 9-0 in 1931. Compiled a 193-128 record for 15 seasons of play. Was a good hitting pitcher.

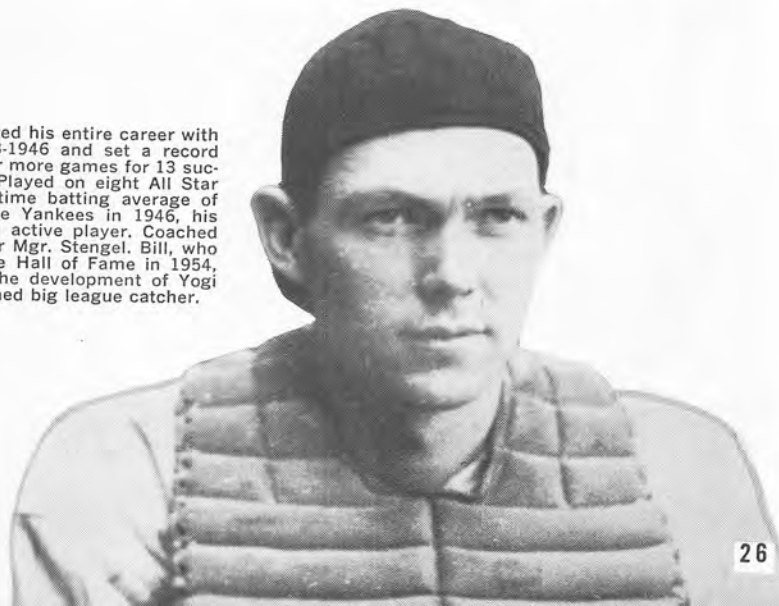

JOE CRONIN is now the President of the American League. In his day he was a scrappy, aggressive, hustling shortstop, and field leader par excellence. Led the Senators to the pennant in 1933 in his first season as manager. Piloted the Red Sox to the flag in 1946. Was named All-Star shortstop seven times. Was MVP in 1930. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1956.

MEL HARDER began and ended his pitching career with Cleveland 1928-1947. Had a 223-186 lifetime record. Currently is pitching coach for the Tribe.

ALVIN CROWDER was a fine righthander who delighted in pitching against and beating the Yankees. Pitched for the Senators, Browns and Tigers and finished an 11-year career with a 167-115 record.

BILL DICKEY played his entire career with the Yankees 1928-1946 and set a record by catching 100 or more games for 13 successive seasons. Played on eight All Star Teams. Owns lifetime batting average of .313. Managed the Yankees in 1946, his last season as an active player. Coached the Yankees under Mgr. Stengel. Bill, who was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1954, is credited with the development of Yogi Berra into a polished big league catcher.

CHUCK KLEIN (left) was the mightiest home-run hitter ever to wear a Phillies uniform. Before he hung up his spikes for keeps in 1944, whacked an even 300 home runs; drove in 1201 runs and finished with a lifetime batting average of .320. Hit over .300 in each of his first six seasons with the Phils. Was MVP in 1932 and 1933.

JIMMY FOXX was a great home run hitter, with a total of 534, second only to Ruth's 714. Hit 30 or more homers in 12 consecutive seasons. Batted .300 or better 14 times and had a lifetime average of .325. Was league's MVP in 1932-33-38. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1951.

GEORGE EARNSHAW was a fast ball pitcher who had his best years pitching for Connie Mack. Helped pitch the A's to pennants in 1929-30-31, winning 67 games while losing only 28. Later pitched for the White Sox, Dodgers and Cardinals. Concluded a nine-year career with a 127-93 mark.

WHIT WYATT broke into the majors in 1929 but achieved stardom with the Dodgers ten years later (1939-43), while winning 78 games and losing only 39. Clinched the 1941 pennant for Brooklyn with a 6-0 shutout over the Braves in Boston on Sept. 25. Has served as pitching coach with the Phils and Braves and is credited with the development of Jack Sanford and Dick Donovan.

PEPPER MARTIN was a one-man team who feared neither man nor batted ball and many a time his barrel-shaped chest stopped grounders and line drives at third base. His hitting and base-stealing sparked the 1931 Cardinals, considered the best ever, to the pennant and World's Championship.

DOC CRAMER was a fine outfielder for the A's, Red Sox, Senators and Tigers during his twenty-year tenure in the majors. He was a graceful fielder and a timely hitter and batted over .300 eight times. Compiled a lifetime .296 batting average.

GUS MANCUSO was a fine catcher for the Cardinals and Giants, whose clever handling of the New York pitching staff helped win pennants in 1933-36-37. Also caught for the Cubs, Dodgers and Phils. Finished a 17-season career with a lifetime batting average of .265.

CARL HUBBELL was one of the great southpaws of the N.L. Won a total of 253 games, scoring 16 straight in 1936. Compiled a streak of 46 and a third (46 1/3) scoreless innings in 1933. No-hit Pittsburgh 11-0 in 1929. Hailed for impressive performance in 1934 All-Star game when he struck out Ruth, Gehrig, Foxx, Simmons, and Cronin in succession. Was elected to Hall of Fame in 1947.

ART JORGENS who was born in Modum, Norway was a talented receiver who would have been a first string catcher on any team other than the Yankees. Was Bill Dickey's understudy from 1929 to 1939.

BLONDY RYAN was a popular utility infielder with the Giants, Phils and White Sox 1930-1938. Played every position except first base. Finished career with a .239 lifetime batting average.

ROLLIE HEMSLEY caught in the majors for 19 years and at one time or another donned the uniform of the Pirates, Cubs, Browns, Indians, Reds, Yanks and Phils. Participated in a total of 1593 games and finished with a batting average of .262.

SAM LESLIE divided a ten-season career between the Giants and Dodgers. Was Bill Terry's understudy and a fine pinch-hitter. Batted .300 or better five times and finished with a lifetime batting average of .304.

EARL AVERILL used to engender fear in the hearts of all pitchers. This hard hitting outfielder batted over .300 eight times, six in succession. Batted .378 in 1936. Finished a 13 season career with a lifetime mark of .316. Has a son who has been up with Cleveland and Chicago (N) and is currently on the roster of the Los Angeles Angels.

CHARLEY GELBERT was a shortstop of rare promise (1929-32) with a brilliant future, whose career never was the same after an off-season hunting accident. Tried a comeback in 1935 but hung up his spikes for good in 1940 after failing to attain his promised form.

GUS SUHR was a durable first baseman who established a N.L. record of playing in the most consecutive games (822). Finished with a lifetime batting average of .281 after 11 seasons.

TONY CUCCINELLO was a good man to have on a ball-club, being a timely hitter, a dependable fielder and a real hustler. Played for the Reds, Dodgers, Braves, Giants and White Sox during his 15 year career. Lost the League's batting title in 1945 on the last day of the season when the official scorer at the Yankee Stadium credited Stirnweiss with an extra hit by negating a previous error call. Tony finished with a .308 average to George's .309.

LON WARNEKE was a star pitcher for the Cubs and Cardinals and compiled a 192-121 record after 15 seasons of play. Won more than twenty games three times. Beat the Tigers twice in the 1935 world series. Currently umpires in the National League.

LUKE APPLING was a fine shortstop and a tremendous hitter who played his entire 20 season career with the White Sox. Batted over .300 16 times, 9 years consecutively. Won the league's batting crown in 1936 with a .388 mark. Owns a lifetime batting average of .310.

HAL TROSKY was a hard hitting first baseman for Cleveland who might have become an all-time great had not migraine headaches impaired his health and cause a premature retirement. Had his best year in 1936 when he hit .343 and led the League in RBI's with 162.

TOMMY BRIDGES was a frail and diminutive right-hander who made up for these shortcomings with a great heart and an even greater curveball. Reached his peak in 1934-35-36 when he won 22-21-23 games. Beat the Cubs twice in the 1935 world series.

JOE KUHSEL (right) divided his 19 seasons in the A.L. playing for the Senators and White Sox. Batted over .300 three times and finished with a lifetime batting average of .277. Was non-playing manager of Washington 1948-49.

SMEAD JOLLEY was a major league hitter whose outfielding left much to be desired. Had a brief tenure with the White Sox and Red Sox (1930-1933). Had a lifetime batting average of .305.

VAN LINGLE MUNGO was a good pitcher who could have been one of the game's greatest had the Brooklyn club he toiled for been a contender. Finished with a 120-115 record after pitching 14 years with a cellar dwelling team.

PINKY HIGGINS (left) and BIRDIE TEBBETTS were teammates on the Detroit Tigers 1939-1946. Higgins was a fine third baseman who starred for the A's, Red Sox, and Tigers for 15 years ending up with a lifetime .292 batting average. Managed the Red Sox 1955-58 and again in 1960 replacing Billy Jurges in mid-season. Tebbetts caught for Detroit, Boston and Cleveland during a 14 year tenure. Finished with a .270 lifetime batting average. Was non-playing manager of Cincinnati 1954-58. Is now Executive Vice-President of the Milwaukee Braves.

PAUL DERRINGER is paramount in the memories of Cincinnati fans when they review former Red-leg mound aces. Helped pitch the Reds to pennants in 1939-40. Earlier in his career helped pitch the Cards to the flag in 1931. Won 20 or more games four times and has 32 shutouts to his credit. Finished a 15 year career with a 223-212 record.

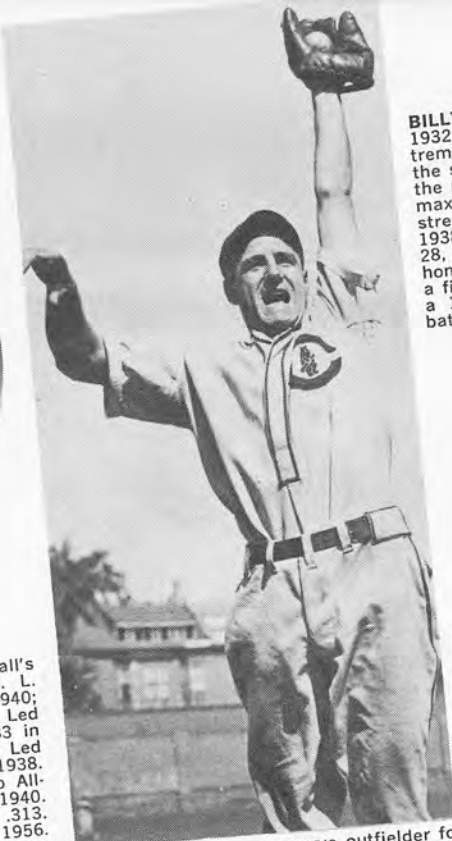

ERNIE LOMBARDI broke in with Brooklyn in 1931 but attained stardom with Cincinnati 1932-40. Was a powerful hitting catcher who used the interlocking grip on the bat and who could have been a consistent .325 hitter had he not been slow of foot. As it was he hit over .300 10 times, 5 years consecutively in a 17 season career. Finished with a lifetime batting average of .306. Is presently employed as press box custodian by the San Francisco Giants in Candlestick Park.

LEFTY GOMEZ looked like anything but a ball player in uniform, however his fast ball needed no introduction. Put together a fine 189-102 record after 14 years in the majors, 13 with the Yankees. Set a record of six wins and no losses in world series competition. Won over twenty games four times, 26 in 1934.

HANK GREENBERG was one of baseball's greatest righthanded batters. Led A. L. in home-runs with 58 in 1938; 41 in 1940; 44 in 1946 and tied with 36 in 1935. Led A. L. in RBI's with 170 in 1935; 183 in 1937; 150 in 1940 and 127 in 1946. Led A. L. in runs scored with 144 in 1938. Played in four world series and two All-Star games. Was MVP in 1935 and 1940. Owns a lifetime batting average of .313. Was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1956.

BILLY JURGES was the shortstop of the 1932 Cubs, who won the pennant with a tremendous late season splurge. He was the shortstop on the 1935 Cubs, who won the pennant on the season's last day, clinching a spectacular 21-game winning streak. Billy was also the shortstop on the 1938 Cubs who won the pennant on Sept. 28, thanks to Gabby Hartnett's "twilight" home run. Bill was a scrapper, a hustler, a fine fielder and a timely hitter. Finished a 17-season career with a .258 lifetime batting average.

MYRIL HOAG was a reserve outfielder for whom the Yanks had high hopes and who had just blossomed into the .300 hitter they had expected, when in 1938 he was injured in a collision with teammate Jake Powell while both were going after a fly ball. Later played for the Browns, White Sox and Indians, but never with his pre-injury form. Finished with a .271 lifetime batting average for 13 seasons' play.

RIP COLLINS was the first baseman on the 1931 Cardinals, considered by many the best Red Bird team ever. Played with the Cards until 1936 and was then sent to the Cubs and helped them win the 1938 pennant. Ended his career in 1941 with the Pirates and had a lifetime batting average of .296. Quit his job as salesman with a sporting goods manufacturer to join the 1961 Cubs as a coach.

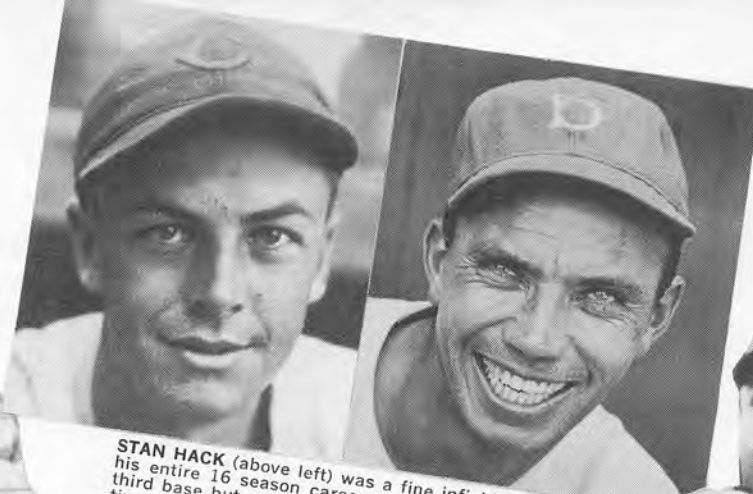

DAFFY DEAN was the younger brother of Dizzy and enjoyed two great seasons 1934 and 1935 when he won 19 games each. No-hit Brooklyn 3-0 in 1934. However he won only 12 from 1936-43 and then retired from the game.

DIZZY DEAN was a tremendous pitcher for the Cardinals 1930-37 and could have become an immortal had he not been hit by a batted ball in the 1937 All-Star Game. This injury caused him to alter his pitching motion in order to favor his injured toe and thereby sustain an incurable sore arm, which in turn shortened and ended his career. Won 30 games in 1934. Led the league in strikeouts in 1932-33-34-35. Set single game record with 17, on July 30, 1933. Was MVP in 1934. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1953.

FRANK CROSETTI has been in the Yankee organization thirty consecutive years, 17 as a player and 13 as a coach. Is the all-time record holder of monies earned from world series competition. As a player was a fine glove man and a smart lead off hitter. Was very adept at getting on base by being hit with pitched balls. As a coach, visitors to the Stadium will find him directing traffic and relaying signals, from the third base box.

STAN HACK (above left) was a fine infielder who played his entire 16 season career with the Cubs generally at third base but on occasion at first. Batted over .300 six times and owns a .301 lifetime batting average. Was non-nals in 1958.

BILLY HERMAN was a great second baseman for the Cubs, who when flanked by Woody English or Billy Jurgens, gave Chicago a fine double play combination. Augmented by Stan Hack, Charley Grimm, and Phil Cavarretta, this infield was second to none as proved by pennants won in 1932-35-38. Herman later starred for the Dodgers, Braves and Pirates. He batted over .300 nine times and finished a 15 season career with a lifetime batting mark of .304.

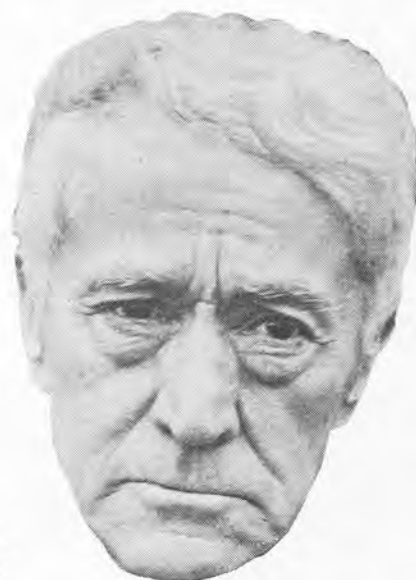

LYNWOOD ROWE was better known to Detroit fans as "Schoolboy" and helped pitch the Tigers to pennants in 1934-35 and 1940. His record for those years was 24-8; 19-13; 16-3. Later pitched for the Dodgers and Phils. He was a good hitting pitcher and was also used as a pinch-hitter by the Phillies. Had a 158-101 record for his 15 years in the majors.

JOE MEDWICK was a New Jersey boy who made good in St. Louis with the Cardinals. A notorious bad-ball hitter he nevertheless compiled a noteworthy record, that of batting .300 or better 11 consecutive years (1932-42). With the Cards, Joe was a scrapper on a team of scrappers (Gas House Gang), who would fight his own teammates or players on other teams, at the drop of a bat. "Ducky" and "Pepper" Martin were considered the most exciting players ever to wear the Cardinals uniform. He later starred for the Dodgers, Giants and Braves. Owns a .324 lifetime batting average after hitting over .300 14 times in a 17 season career. Got his nickname "Ducky" from the women fans who used to yell "isn't he ducky" everytime he swung at a ball around his ears or ankle and rapped out a base hit.

JAMES CARLETON was nicknamed "Tex" because he was from Comanche, Texas. Pitched for St. Louis, Chicago, Brooklyn and amassed a 100-76 record in his nine-year N. L. span. No-hit the Reds 3-0 at Cincinnati in 1940 while pitching for the Dodgers.

BILL DIETRICH pitched for the A's, Senators and White Sox during his 16-year span in the majors. No-hit the Browns 8-0 in 1937. Compiled a lifetime 108-128 record. Has a son who's considered a fine major league pitching prospect.

HANK LEIBER was a towering blond outfielder who played for the Giants 1933-38, for the Cubs 1939-41 and for the Giants again in 1942. Was a long ball hitter who never achieved the potential the Giants had expected. However, he batted over .300 three times and finished a 10-season career with a .288 lifetime batting average.

MACE BROWN pitched in both leagues. Came up to the Pirates in 1935 and starred for them until 1940. Was sent to Brooklyn in 1941 and had a 3-2 record. Came to the Red Sox in 1942 and won nine games while losing three. Went into the Service after the 1943 season and a 6-6 record. Returned to the Sox in 1946 to a 3-1 record and then hung up his spikes. Finished career with a 76-57 record.

KENESAW MOUNTAIN LANDIS, baseball's first Commissioner was elected in 1920 and died in office, 1944. His integrity and leadership established baseball in the respect, esteem and affection of the American people. Was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1944.

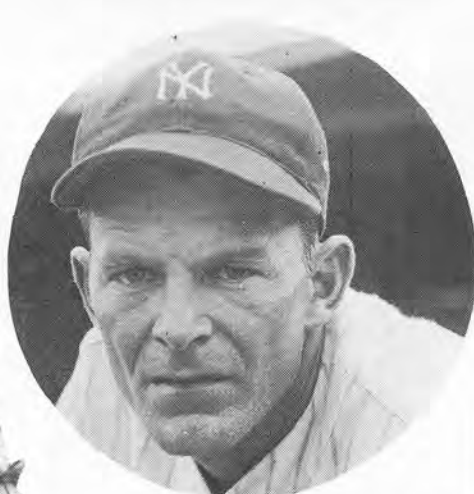

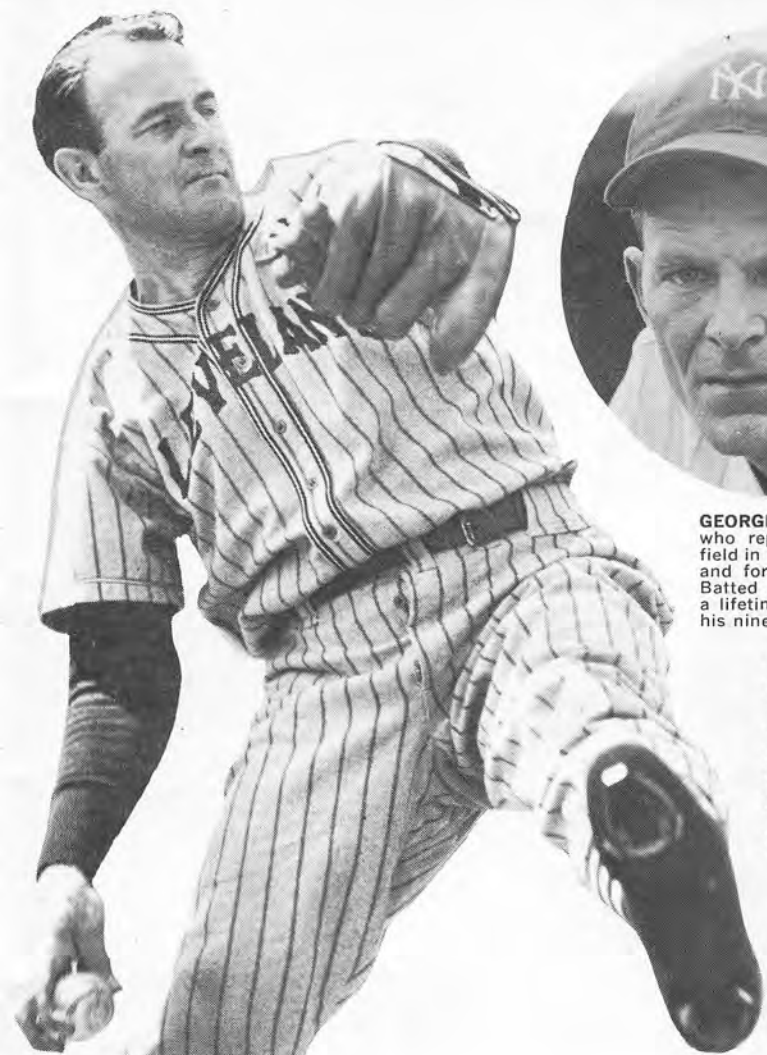

DOLF CAMILLI was traded by the Cubs to the Phils because he was a very flashy fielder but a streaky hitter, in return for Don Hurst a good hitter up until that time and an average fielder. Hurst lasted one year with the Cubs while Camilli blossomed into a top star for the Phils and Dodgers to whom he was sold for $50,000 in 1938. His timely and hard hitting, his frequent homers over the right field wall into Bedford Avenue, his 120 RBI's, and his spectacular glove work were instrumental in bringing to Brooklyn its first pennant since 1920 and earning him the league's MVP in 1941. He ended a twelve season career with a lifetime batting average of .277.

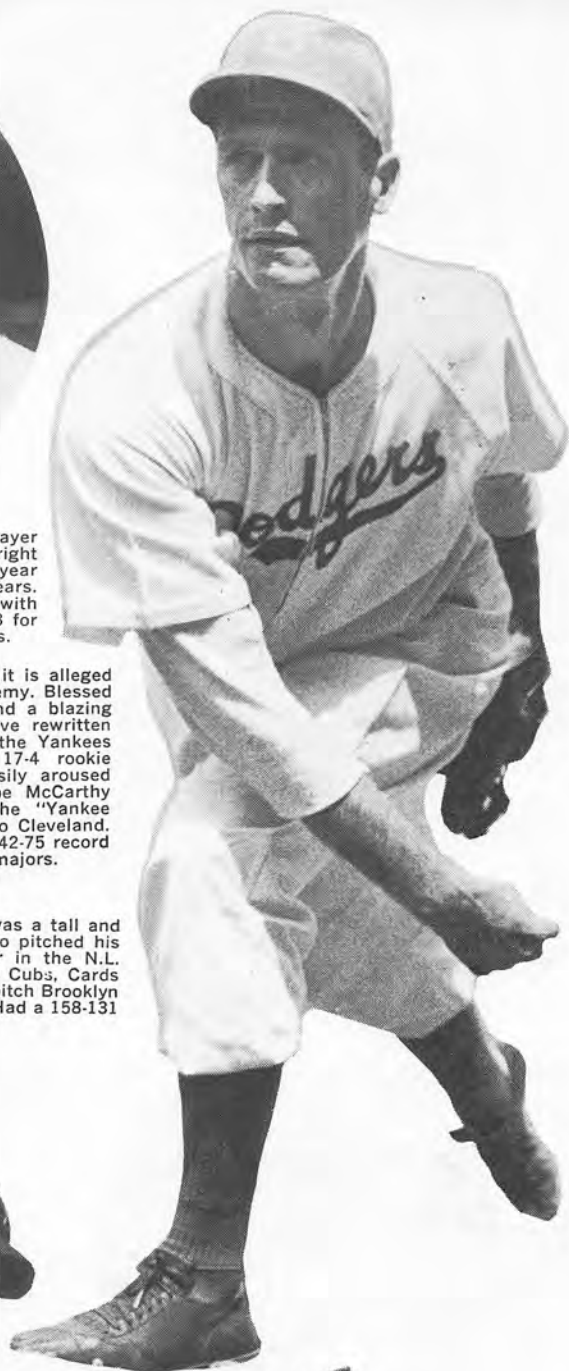

BOB JOHNSON was a hard hitting outfielder for Connie Mack's cellar dwelling A's 1933-1942, who could have been a great star with a first division club. It's to his credit that he never let this influence his game. Later played for the Senators and Red Sox. Hit over .300 five times and finished with a lifetime batting average of .296.

ARKY VAUGHAN was a great shortstop for the Pirates 1932-1941 and never hit below .300. Was sent to Brooklyn in 1942 and starred for the Dodgers in 1943, 1947 and 1948. Had a fourteen-season lifetime batting average of .318.

GEORGE SELKIRK was the player who replaced Babe Ruth in right field in 1934. Hit over .300 that year and for the following three years. Batted .306 in 1939. Finished with a lifetime batting mark of .293 for his nine years with the Yankees.

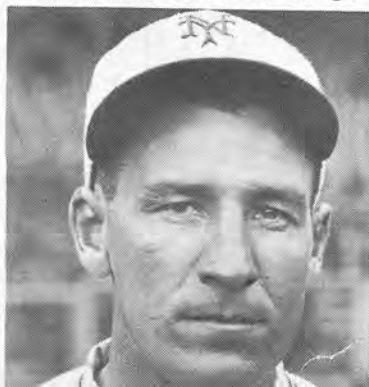

JOHNNY ALLEN (left) it is alleged was his own worst enemy. Blessed with brilliant talent and a blazing fast ball he might have rewritten the record books for the Yankees after an impressive 17-4 rookie year. However his easily aroused temper made Mgr. Joe McCarthy decide he was not the "Yankee Type," and sent him to Cleveland. John compiled a fine 142-75 record after 13 years in the majors.

CURT DAVIS (right) was a tall and gaunt righthander who pitched his entire 13 year career in the N.L. starring for the Phils, Cubs, Cards and Dodgers. Helped pitch Brooklyn to the 1941 pennant. Had a 158-131 lifetime mark.

VITO TAMULIS (right) was a diminutive southpaw who pitched for the Yankees and Browns in the junior circuit and for the Dodgers and Phils in the senior loop. Had a 40-28 record for his six years in the big leagues.

LON KOENECKE was an outfielder who played for the Giants in 1932 and for the Dodgers in 1934-35. Hit .320 in 1934 and finished a three-season career with a .297 average.

BABE DAHLGREN (left) was the player who succeeded Gehrig at first base when a crippling disease made Lou remove himself from the lineup for what he considered the good of the team in 1939. Babe was a spectacular and graceful fielder and a delight to watch as he cavorted around the bag. Was also a fine fielding third baseman with the Newark Bears and a solid hitter. However, his light hitting in the majors shortened his stay there even though he played 12 years with the Red Sox, Braves, Cubs, Dodgers, Phils and Pirates. Babe was a fine gentleman and this author's favorite ball player, past or present.

RED ROLFE was a Dartmouth graduate who played his entire 10 season career with the Yankees, 1931-42. Was a fine glove man and a timely hitter. Played some shortstop but after the 1935 season became a fixture at third base. Batted over .300 four times and finished with a lifetime batting average of .289. Was non-playing manager of Detroit, 1949-1952.

DON HEFFNER was a reserve infielder for the Yankees, 1934-37, before being traded to the Browns for whom he played until 1943. Also saw service with the A's and Tigers. He was slight built but wiry and a fine glove man. With the Yankees, he used to spell Lazzeri at second base. Finished an 11 season career with a .241 lifetime batting average.

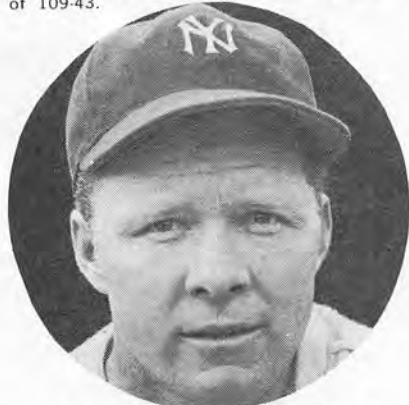

BUDDY HASSETT was a native New Yorker who played for both the Dodgers and Yankees as well as the Braves. His natural position was first base but he did an acceptable job in the outfield. Batted over .300 three times and finished with a lifetime average of .292.

MARIUS RUSSO had a brilliant future ahead of him as a lefthanded pitcher with the Yanks when he left to serve in the Army in 1943. However he developed a sore-arm in the service and after an ineffective 0-2 record in 1946, retired. Put together a 45-34 record in six seasons for New York.

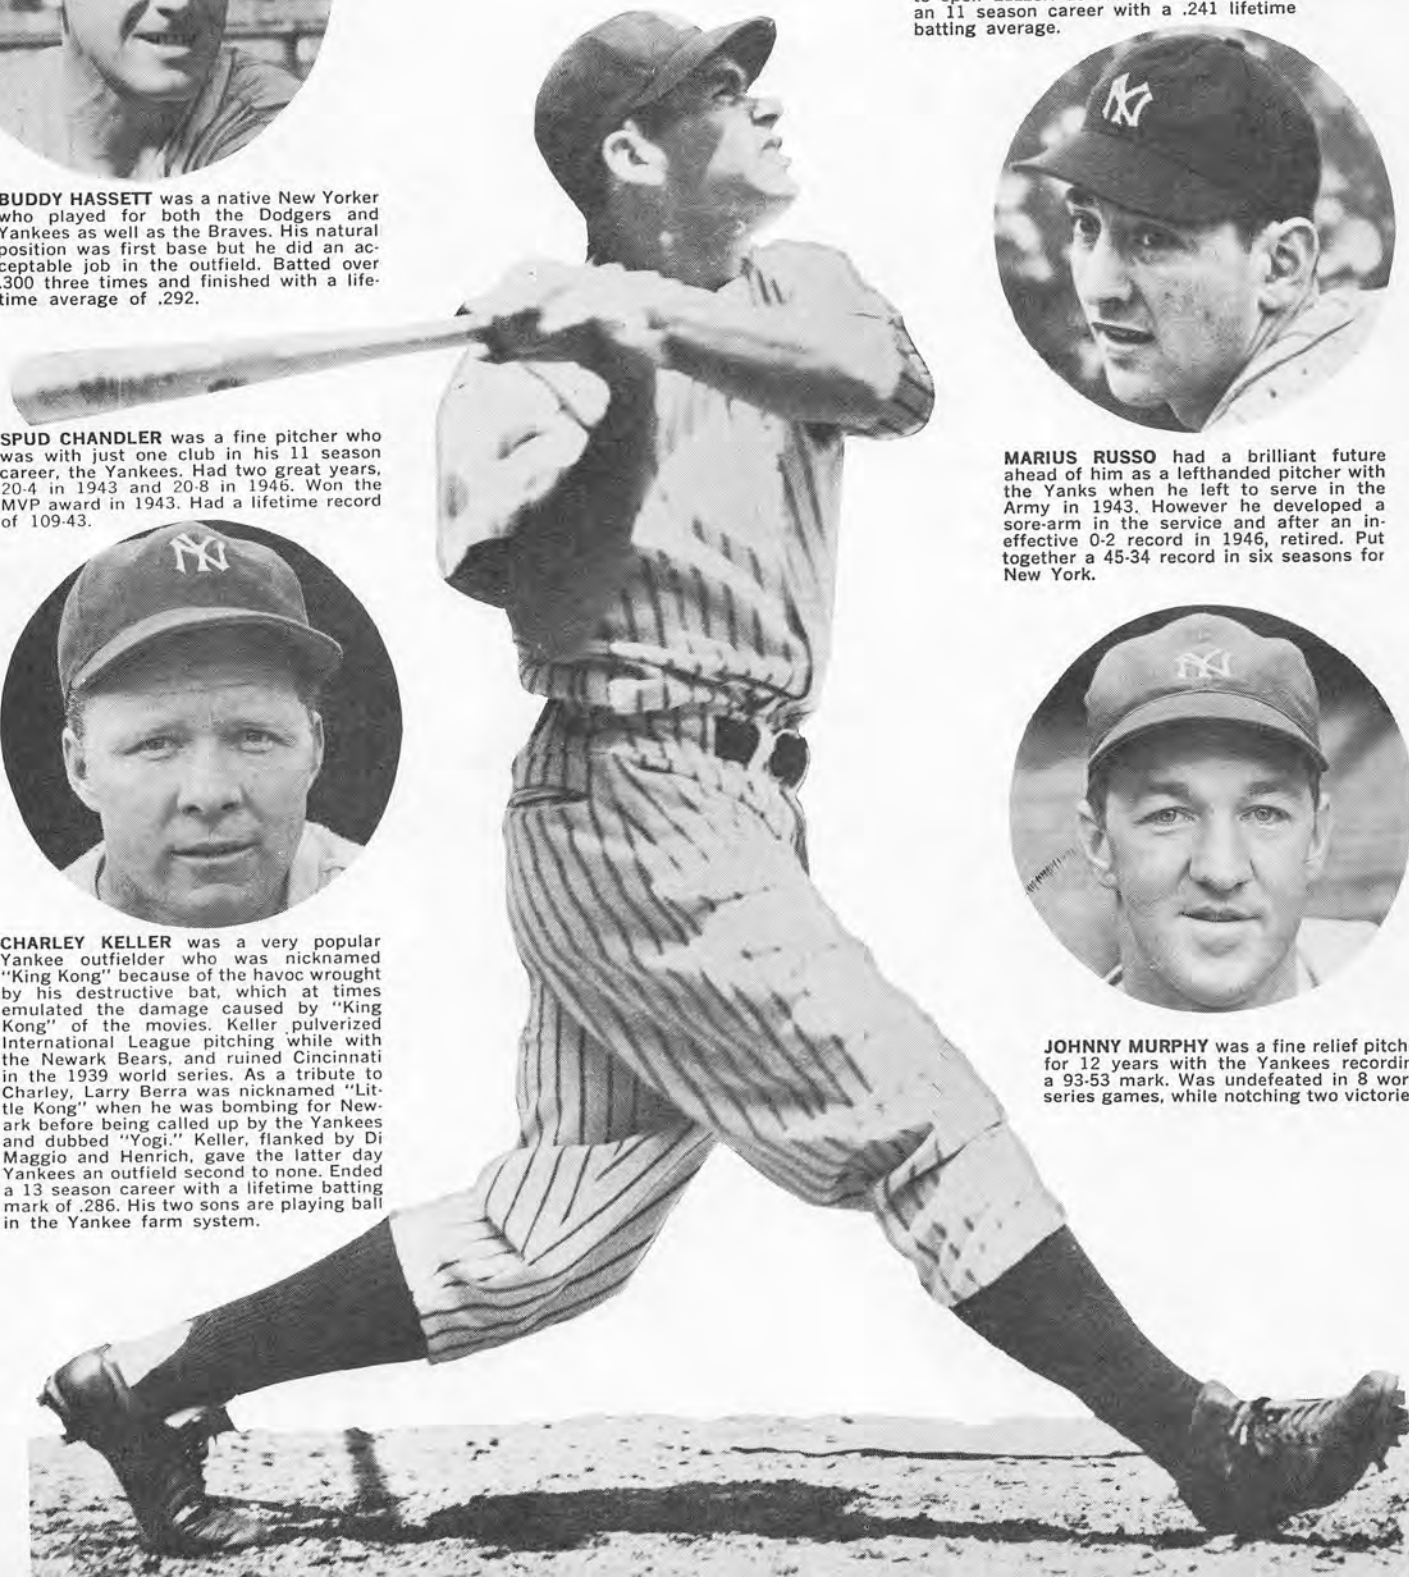

SPUD CHANDLER was a fine pitcher who was with just one club in his 11 season career, the Yankees. Had two great years, 20-4 in 1943 and 20-8 in 1946. Won the MVP award in 1943. Had a lifetime record of 109-43.

CHARLEY KELLER was a very popular Yankee outfielder who was nicknamed "King Kong" because of the havoc wrought by his destructive bat, which at times emulated the damage caused by "King Kong" of the movies. Keller pulverized International League pitching while with the Newark Bears, and ruined Cincinnati in the 1939 world series. As a tribute to Charley, Larry Berra was nicknamed "Little Kong" when he was bombing for Newark before being called up by the Yankees and dubbed "Yogi." Keller, flanked by Di Maggio and Henrich, gave the latter day Yankees an outfield second to none. Ended a 13 season career with a lifetime batting mark of .286. His two sons are playing ball in the Yankee farm system.

JOHNNY MURPHY was a fine relief pitcher for 12 years with the Yankees recording a 93-53 mark. Was undefeated in 8 world series games, while notching two victories.

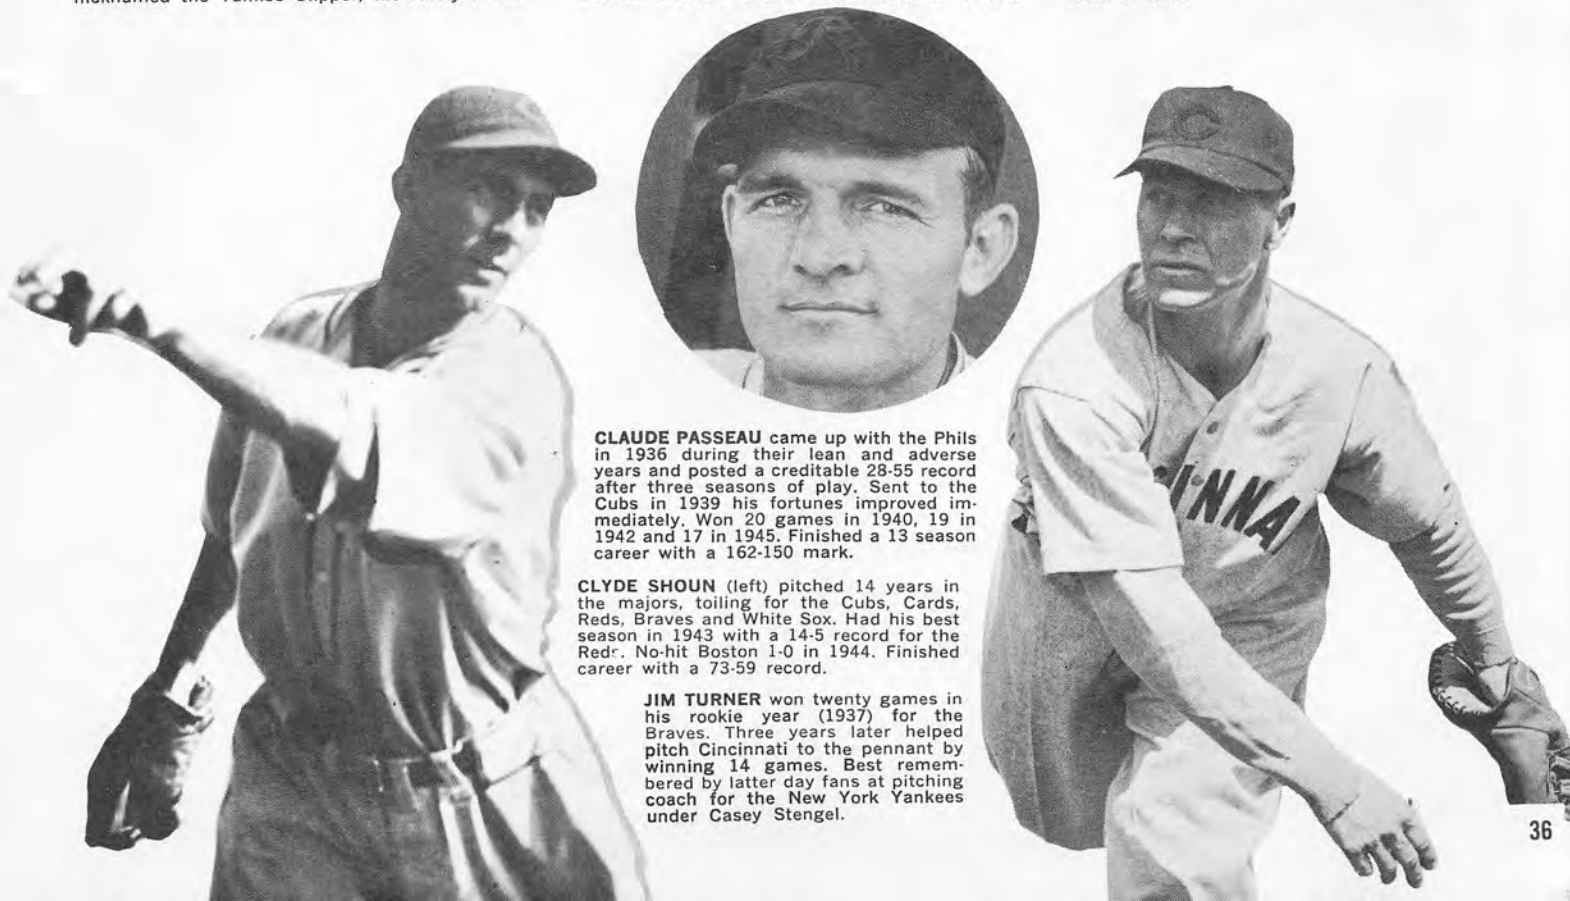

VINCE, JOE and DOM DIMAGGIO. VINCE was a long ball hitter who either connected for the circuit or struck out. Had six "grand-slam" homers to his credit. Played for the Braves, Reds, Pirates, Phils and Giants. Finished a ten season career with a lifetime batting mark of .249. JOE, nicknamed the Yankee Clipper, hit safely in 56 consecutive games for a major league record. Hit two homeruns in one inning in 1936. Hit three homeruns in one game three times. Played in 10 world series and 11 all star games. Was MVP in 1939-41 and 47. Batted over .300 11 times in a 13 season career, seven times consecutively. Elected to Hall of Fame in 1955. DOM was a fine centerfielder for the Red Sox who possessed a great arm and was a timely hitter. His many and fine exploits for the Sox were eclipsed by the stellar play of his brother Joe. Dominic batted over .300 five times in a 11 season career and ended his play for Boston with a lifetime batting mark of .298.

CLAUDE PASSEAU came up with the Phils in 1936 during their lean and adverse years and posted a creditable 28-55 record after three seasons of play. Sent to the Cubs in 1939 his fortunes improved immediately. Won 20 games in 1940, 19 in 1942 and 17 in 1945. Finished a 13 season career with a 162-150 mark.

CLYDE SHOUN (left) pitched 14 years in the majors, toiling for the Cubs, Cards, Reds, Braves and White Sox. Had his best season in 1943 with a 14-5 record for the Redr. No-hit Boston 1-0 in 1944. Finished career with a 73-59 record.

JIM TURNER won twenty games in his rookie year (1937) for the Braves. Three years later helped pitch Cincinnati to the pennant by winning 14 games. Best remembered by latter day fans at pitching coach for the New York Yankees under Casey Stengel.

WALKER and MORT COOPER were both brothers and a star battery with the Cardinals, 1940-45. Walker later caught for the Giants, Reds, Braves, Pirates and Cubs. Batted over 300 eight times and ended career with a .285 batting average. Mort pitched the Cards to the pennants in 1942-43-44, winning 22-21-22 games. Was MVP in 1942. Later pitched for the Braves, Giants and Cubs. Ended career with a 128-75 record.

KIRBY HIGBE pitched for the Cubs, Phils, Dodgers, Pirates and Giants during his 12 year stay in the majors. Enjoyed his best seasons with Brooklyn winning 70 and losing 38 games. Helped pitch them to the pennant in 1941 with a 22-9 mark. Finished career with a 118-101 record.

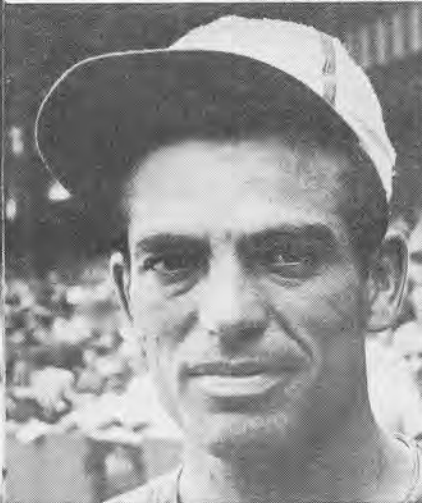

JOE GORDON succeeded Tony Lazzeri at second base and for seven years performed brilliantly for the Yankees, helping them to pennants in 1938-39-41-42-43. Was MVP in 1942 the year he batted .322. Was traded to the Indians in 1947 in exchange for Allie Reynolds and sparked them to the flag in 1948. Was with Cleveland until 1950. Made headlines recently as manager of the Indians when he was traded for manager Jimmy Dykes of Detroit. Quit the Tigers at the end of the 1960 season and was signed to manage the K.C. A's for 1961.

RED BARRETT wore the uniforms of the Reds, Braves and Cardinals during his 11 year stint in the big leagues. Had his best season in 1945 with St. Louis when he won 21 and lost 9. Finished with a 69-69 record.

ACE ADAMS was a work-horse relief pitcher for the New York Giants, the only team he pitched for during his six year stint in the majors. Set a club record by finishing the most games, 52, in 1943. Finished career with a 41-33 record.

LOU KLEIN was an infielder with the Cardinals, 1943-1945, who along with Max Lanier and Fred Martin left the Red Birds in 1946 to play in the ill-fated Mexican League. Returned to the Cards in 1949. In 1951 played 2 games for Cleveland and 49 games for the Phils. Finished with a .259 lifetime batting average.

LUIS OLMO was a native of Puerto Rico and a hard-hitting outfielder for the Dodgers 1943-44-45 and 1949. Played for the Braves in 1950 and 1951. Hit over .300 three times and had a .281 lifetime batting average.

ERNE BONHAM pitched for only two clubs during his 10 year stint in the majors, the Yankees (1940-46) and the Pirates (1947-49). Enjoyed his best season in 1942 with a 21-5 mark. His untimely death in 1949 following an attack of appendicitis was a severe loss to the game. His record at the finish of the 1949 season was 103-72.

BILL VOISELLE might have spent his entire career pitching for the New York Giants, judging from his first full season with them in 1944 when he won 21 and lost 16. However he was fined $500 by Mgr. Mel Ott for throwing an 0-2 home-run ball and was never the same afterwards. Was sent to the Braves in 1947 and to the Cubs in 1950. Finished with a lifetime record of 74-84.

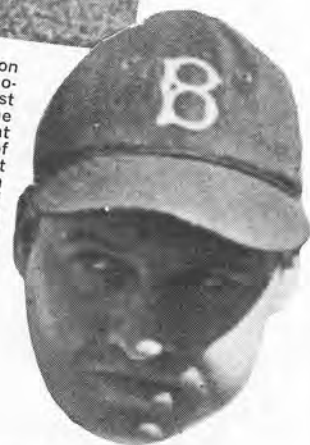

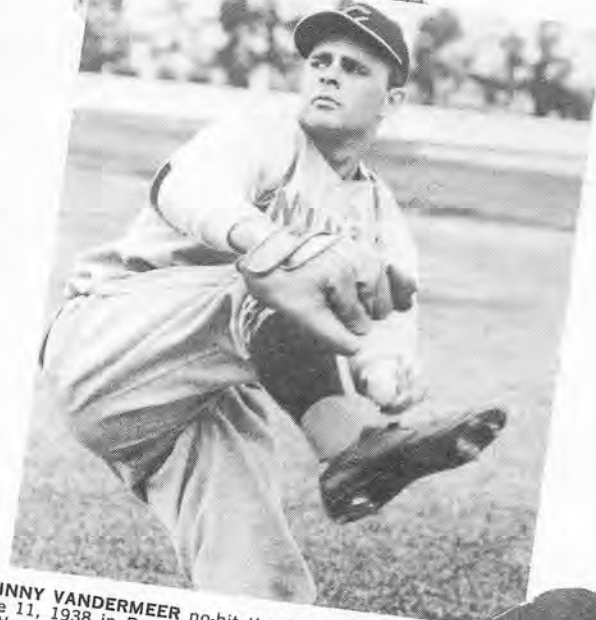

DON GUTTERIDGE was a speedy infielder who starred for the St. Louis Cardinals, 1936-1945. Later played for the Red Sox and Pirates. Finished a 12 season career with a .256 batting average. Is now a coach under Al Lopez for the White Sox.

AL GIONFRIDDO was a diminutive outfielder who played for Pittsburgh, 1944-46, and for Brooklyn in 1947. He'll always be remembered for the miraculous stab he made while diving over the left field bullpen gate at the Yankee Stadium to catch Joe DiMaggio's 415 foot drive. This larcenous act deprived Joe of a home-run and the Yanks of a victory in the sixth game of the 1947 series. Not too well remembered is that Gionfriddo and Miksis were the runners who scored on Lavagetto's double over the outstretched glove of Henrich off the right field wall in Brooklyn to beat the Yanks 3-2 and spoil Bill Beven's bid for a no-hitter, in the fourth game of the same world series.

JOHNNY VANDERMEER no-hit the Braves 3-0 on June 11, 1938 in Boston and four days later on hit the Dodgers 6-0 at Ebbets Field in the first time in all of baseball's rich history that such a feat was accomplished. That night of June 15 marked one of the very few times that heroes. Vandy pitched 11 years for the Reds and one year each for the Cubs and Indians. Finished with a lifetime record of 119-121. Currently is a manager in the Red Farm system and was named to pilot The Tampa Club for 1961.

JOHN STURM was the first baseman on the 1941 Yankees which won the pennant and beat the Dodgers four games to one in the world series. Had a .239 batting average for 124 season games and a .286 average for the five series games.

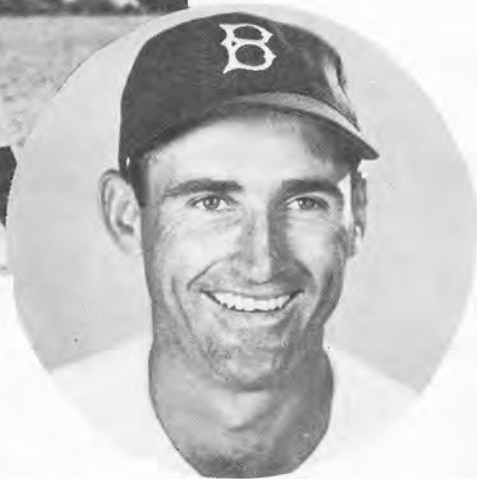

HUGH CASEY broke in with the Cubs in 1935 and after an 0-0 record for 13 games was sent back to the minors. Was drafted from Memphis by Mgr. Leo Durocher for the Dodgers in 1938 and became a star first as a starter then as a reliever. Compiled a fine 75-42 lifetime record. Was the pitcher who blew the third strike past Tom Henrich in the fourth game of the 1941 world series which got away from catcher Mickey Owen and ignited a four run rally that won the game for the Yankees 7-4.

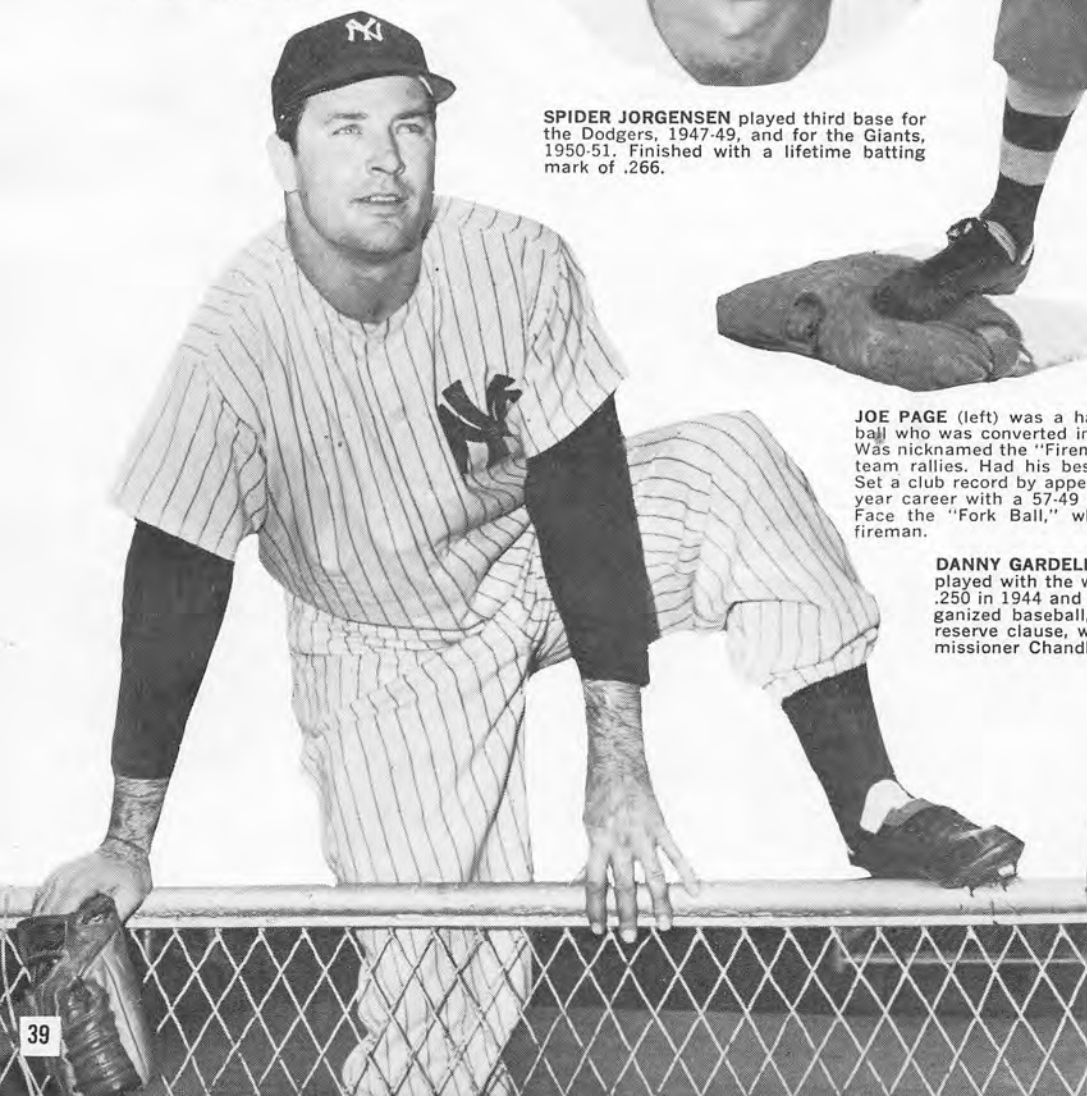

PETE GRAY was a one-armed outfielder who achieved a good degree of success playing semi-pro ball, but who was understandably handicapped in the big leagues. Appeared in 77 games for the old St. Louis Browns in 1945 and batted .218.

EMIL VERBAN was an agile and graceful second baseman who played for the Cardinals, Phils, Cubs and Braves, 1944-1950. Starred for the Cards in the 1944 "Trolley Series" with the Browns by hitting .412 and fielding brilliantly. Owns a lifetime .272 batting average.

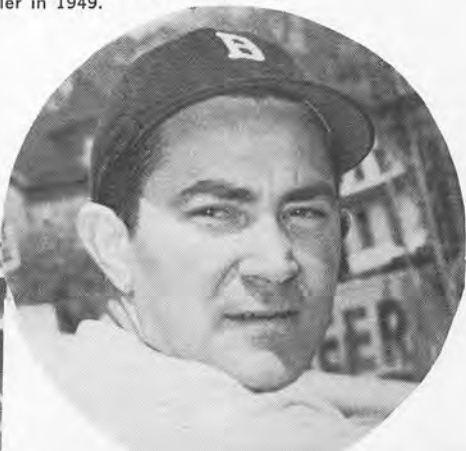

SPIDER JORGENSEN played third base for the Dodgers, 1947-49, and for the Giants, 1950-51. Finished with a lifetime batting mark of .266.

JOE PAGE (left) was a happy-go-lucky southpaw with a blazing fast-ball who was converted into a star reliever by manager Bucky Harris. Was nicknamed the "Fireman" because of his ability to douse opposing team rallies. Had his best years for the Yankees in 1947 and 1949. Set a club record by appearing in 60 games in 1949. Finished an eight year career with a 57-49 record. Is credited with having taught Elroy Face the "Fork Ball," which has made the latter another brilliant fireman.

DANNY GARDELLA was a native New Yorker who played with the war-time New York Giants hitting .250 in 1944 and .272 in 1945. His suit against organized baseball, challenging the legality of the reserve clause, was settled out of court by Commissioner Chandler in 1949.

RAY MUELLER was a hardworking and polished receiver who caught in the N.L. 14 years. Wore the mask and mitt for the Braves, Pirates, Reds and Giants. Finished with a lifetime batting average of .252.

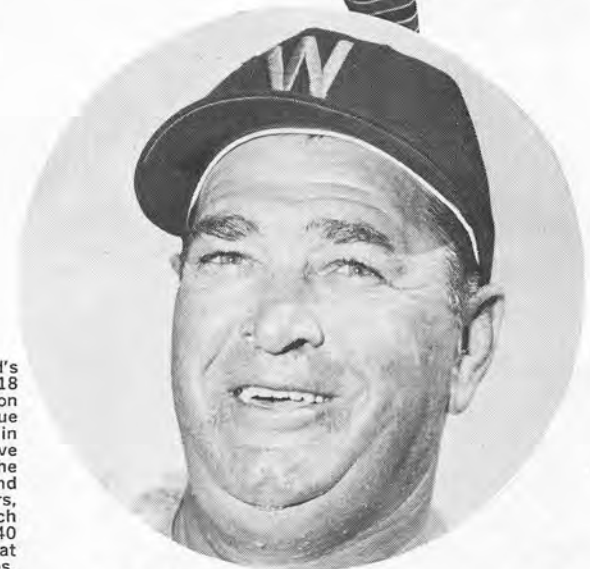

BIG JOHN MIZE was through marriage a distant relative of Babe Ruth and this might account for his heavy hitting and slugging ability. Batted over .300 nine consecutive times, 1936-1947, and his .349 average in 1939 was the highest in the league. Led NL in homers with 28 in 1939, and 43 in 1940. Tied for the record with 51 in 1947 and with 40 in 1948. Hit three home-runs in one game six times, a record never equalled. Had five grand-slams and is the all-time leader of the Cardinals in slugging with a .600 percentage mark. Came to the Yankees past his prime but still a threat and became an outstanding pinch-hitter for them. Set a record in 1953 by getting five consecutive pinch-hits, and finished the season with 19 just one short of the AL record. Retired with a lifetime batting average of .313 after 15 seasons in the majors. Currently resides in DeLand, Florida.

BOB FELLER (right) was one of the greatest pitchers of modern times, as well as a top gate attraction. Won 20 or more games six times. Pitched three no-hitters to equal Cy Young's record. Set a record by pitching 11 one-hitters. Led league in strike-outs seven times, setting a record in 1946 with 348. Struck out 18 batters in one game in 1938. Finished career with a 266-162 record.

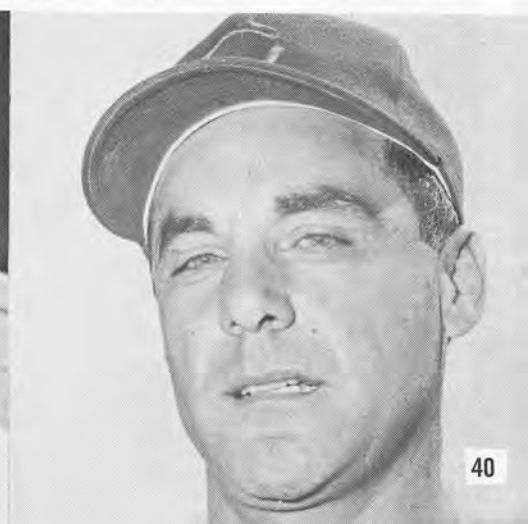

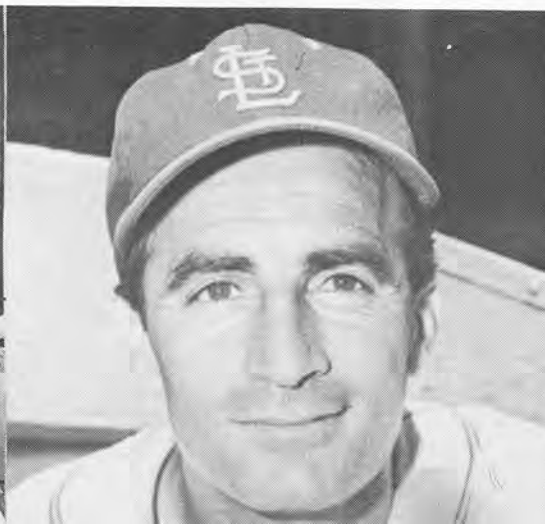

BOBO NEWSOM was the railroad's best friend, having pitched for 18 different teams in his 20 season career. Pitched for more big league teams than any other player in baseball. Was with the Senators five times, the Browns three times, the Dodgers and Athletics twice, and once with the Cubs, Red Sox, Tigers, Yankees and Giants. Helped pitch the Tigers to the pennant in 1940 with a 21-5 record and then beat the Reds twice in the world series. Ended career with a lifetime 211-222 mark.

JOHNNY BERARDINO was a fine second baseman with the Browns, Indians and Pirates, 1939-1952. Never hit for the big average but delivered often enough in the clutch. Hit .271 in 1941 his best season. Finished with a lifetime .249 batting average.

PHIL CAVARRETTA was only 18 years old when he joined the Cubs, became an immediate sensation, and starred with them for twenty years. Batted over .300 six times, .355 in 1945 when he won the MVP award. Is one of the select members of the 2,000 hits club. Was playing manager of the Cubs 1951-53. Owns a lifetime .293 batting average.

DIXIE WALKER came up to the Yankees in 1931 as a highly touted outfielder, but an injured shoulder kept him from developing into the player they had expected. Began to show signs of his early brilliance with the White Sox and Tigers and was picked up on waivers by Brooklyn in 1939. He finally developed into the player the Yankees had wanted, but for the Dodgers. Fred spent nine productive years with Brooklyn and became one of the all-time Dodger favorites. Batted over .300 13 times in his 18 season career, eight times for the Dodgers. Played in 1,207 games for the Dodgers, made 1,395 hits, 274 doubles, 397 extra base hits and 998 singles. The people's cherche (Brooklynese slang) had a lifetime batting average of .306.

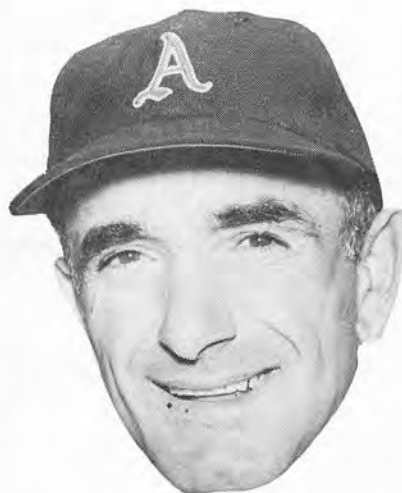

BERT HAAS was a handy man to have around for he played every infield position except second base and performed an acceptable job in the outfield. Came up with Brooklyn in 1937 and later played for the Reds, Phils, Giants and White Sox. Retired after the 1951 season with a .264 batting average.

HAL NEWHOUSER was with the Tigers five years before he developed into the most feared southpaw in the league. Starting in 1944 won over 20 games four times, three seasons consecutively. Was MVP in 1944 and 1945 when he had 29-9 and 25-9 records. Spent 15 seasons with Detroit and 2 with Cleveland. Ended career with a 207-150 record.

ENOS SLAUGHTER was hustle personified. Gave the game all he had while wearing the uniform of the Cardinals (1938-1953), Yankees and Kansas City A's. Was an "Old Pro" in the true sense of the word. Batted over .300 nine times, and twice in world series play. Is right behind Musial and Hornsby in the Cardinals' all-time top ten batting departments: in runs scored 1,071, hits 2,064, triples 135, total bases 3,138, and extra base hits 647. Ended an 18 season career with a lifetime batting average of .302.

MICKY HARRIS was a native New Yorker who got away from the scouts of the three New York clubs and pitched good ball for the Red Sox. Had a 17-9 record for them in 1946. Later pitched for the Senators and Indians. Ended a nine season career with a 59-71 record.

PETE SUDER spent his 13 season career with the Philadelphia and K. C. Athletics and at one time or another played every infield position. Never hit for the high average, .286 was his best mark (1953). Had a .249 lifetime batting average.

MARTY MARION was one of the greatest fielding shortstops of modern times. He was alternately called "Slats" and the "Octopus" by some, and "Mr. Shortstop" by others. Heaven only knows what he was called by batters when he robbed them of basehits with his scintillating play. Was the heart of the Cardinals infield, 1940-1950. Was non-playing manager of the Cardinals in 1951. Was playing manager of the Browns, 1952-53. Was non-playing manager of the White Sox, 1954-56. Had lifetime batting average of .263.

HAROLD REESE and PHIL RIZZUTO were not only two of the greatest all-around shortstops of the present century, but also the backbone of the Dodgers and Yankee infields. PEE WEE gave Brooklyn 16 seasons of superlative play. In the clubs' all-time top ten in batting departments is second only to Zach Wheat in games played 2,166, at bats 8,058, hits 2,170, singles 1,634, and doubles 330. Owns a lifetime batting average of .269. Is a weekend sportscaster, a new career he began in 1960. SCOOTER was the best shortstop the Yankees ever had. After Joe Di retired the Yankee players still felt they could win pennants as long as nothing happened to the "little guy at shortstop." Phil had the AL's best fielding percentage for shortstops, .9817, in 1950. Had record for fewest errors for shortstops, 14, in 1950. Played the most consecutive games without an error, 58, from Sept. 17, 1949 to June 8, 1950. Batted over .300 twice, and .324 in 1950 when he won the MVP award. Finished a 13 season career with a lifetime .273 batting average. Is doing a fine job announcing the Yankee games on radio and television, and is a partner of Yogi Berra in a Clifton, New Jersey, Bowling Emporium.

BILLY COX was a great fielding third baseman for the Dodgers who made seemingly impossible plays look routine. Started career with the Pirates in 1941 and ended it with the Orioles in 1955. Had a lifetime .262 batting average.

EDDIE JOOST came up with the Reds in 1936 and was traded to the Reds in the 1943 season. Stayed with Boston after the end of the 1945 season and was leased to the minors. Came back to the majors in 1947 and starred for the Athletics until 1954. Retired after the 1955 season which he had spent in a Red Sox uniform. Had a .239 lifetime batting average.

JOHNNY PESKY was a good ball player and a fine lead-off hitter for the Red Sox for eight seasons, and batted over .300 six times. Played third, shortstop and second base equally well. When teamed with Bob Doerr gave the Red Sox a brilliant double play combination. Later played for Detroit and Washington. Ended a 12 year career with a .307 batting average. Is highly regarded and well liked by owner Tom Yawkey and many believe it won't be too long before he is appointed manager of the Red Sox.

ALLIE REYNOLDS, VIC RASCHI, ED LOPAT, (left to right) were the big three of the Yankee Pitching staff. ALLIE no-hit Cleveland 1-0 July 12, 1951 and Boston 8-0 Sept. 28, 1951. Won 20 games in 1952. Ended career with a 182-107 record and a 7-2 mark for world series play. Came to the Yankees on Joe DiMaggio's recommendation in a trade for Joe Gordon. VIC won 21 games in each of the 1949-50-51 seasons. Had a 5-3 record in world series play. Finished with a 132-66 mark. ED was a New Yorker who came to the Yankees from the White Sox. Won 113 and lost 51 in his eight seasons with the Yanks. Had a 4-1 record in world series competition. Retired as an active player after the 1955 season with a 163-112 record. Was Yankee pitching coach for the 1960 season.

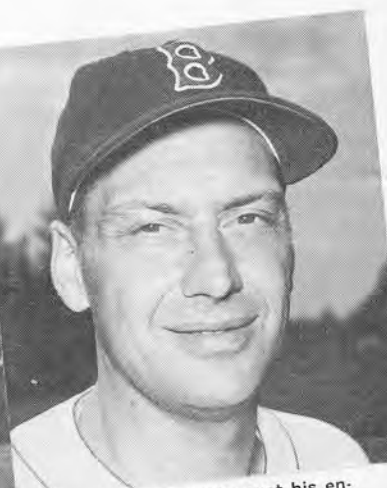

JACK KRAMER (below) out of uniform could have been taken for a male model. He made a handsome appearance and was a natty dresser. In uniform of the Browns, Red Sox, Giants and Yankees he pitched in the majors for 12 years. Helped the Browns to their only pennant in 1944 with a 17-13 record and then beat the Cards in third game of the world series. Had an 18-5 record with the Red Sox in 1948. Ended career with a 95-103 record.

BUDDY KERR (below, left) was a native New Yorker whose shortstopping for the Giants delighted his many friends. Never hit for the big average and depended on his glove to get him by. Was traded to the Braves in 1950 but was sent by them to the minors after the 1951 season. Had a .249 major league average.

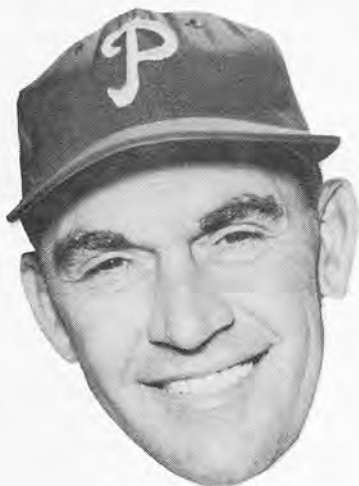

CLYDE KLUTTS was a smooth receiver who caught in both leagues. Played for the Braves, Giants, Cards and Pirates in the senior circuit and for the Browns and Senators in the junior league. Had a lifetime .268 batting average.

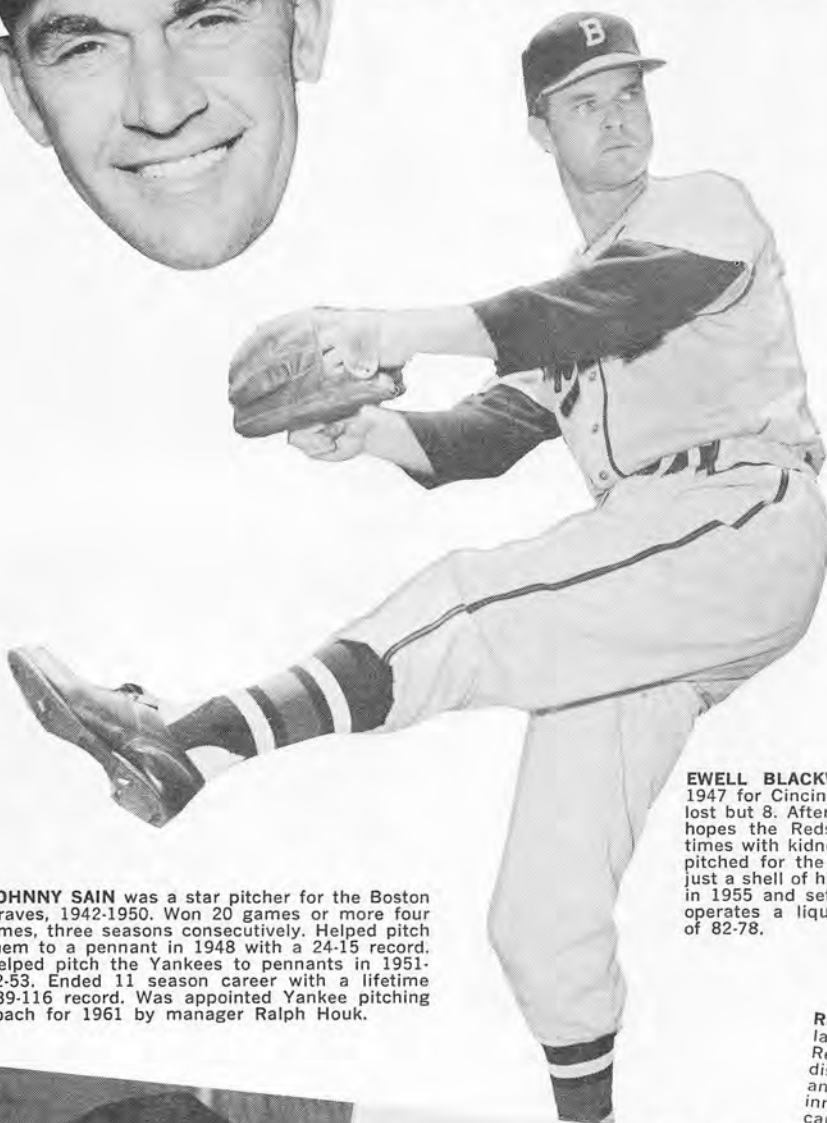

ALPHA BRAZLE (left) spent his entire 10 season major league career pitching for the Cardinals. Compiled a lifetime record of 97-64.

CLYDE VOLLMER (above) was a streak-hitting outfielder who could belt the long ball with the best of them. Played for the Reds, Washington twice, and the Red Sox. Had a lifetime .251 batting average.

JOHNNY LINDELL became a fine outfielder with the Yankees, 1941-49, after having come up as a pitcher. Spent the 1950 season with the Cardinals and was then released to the PCL, resumed pitching and with the aid of a knuckle ball earned another shot at the majors with the Pirates and Phils. However, the butterfly ball didn't tease the big league hitters and he retired after the '54 season. Had a lifetime batting average of .273 and a pitching record of 8-18.

JOHNNY SAIN was a star pitcher for the Boston Braves, 1942-1950. Won 20 games or more four times, three seasons consecutively. Helped pitch them to a pennant in 1948 with a 24-15 record. Helped pitch the Yankees to pennants in 1951-52-53. Ended 11 season career with a lifetime 139-116 record. Was appointed Yankee pitching coach for 1961 by manager Ralph Houk.

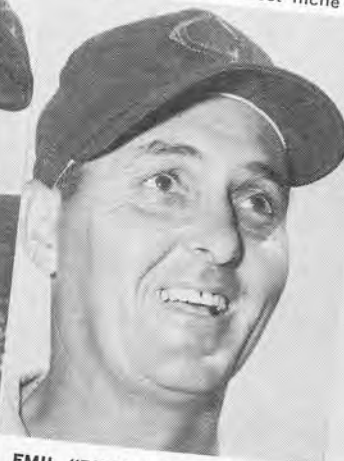

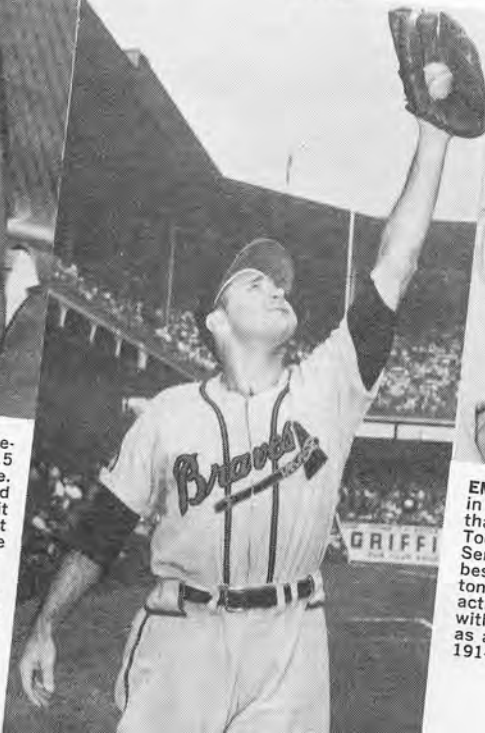

EWELL BLACKWELL no-hit the Braves 6-0 in 1947 for Cincinnati when he won 22 games and lost but 8. Afterwards never lived up to the high hopes the Reds had for him. Was plagued at times with kidney trouble and arm trouble. Later pitched for the Yankees and K. C. A's but was just a shell of his former self. Hung up the spikes in 1955 and settled in Tampa, Florida where he operates a liquor store. Had a lifetime record of 82-78.

REX BARNEY (below right) was a pitcher with a world of stuff but who lacked control. It's been alleged that if home plate were high and outside, Rex would have won every game he started. Bright spots in an otherwise disappointing career were a no-hit 2-0 victory over the Giants in 1948, and his striking out Joe DiMaggio with the bases loaded in the fifth inning of the fifth game of the 1957 world series at Ebbets Field. Ended career with a 35-31 record. Is a fine baseball broadcaster and seems to have found his correct niche in the game.

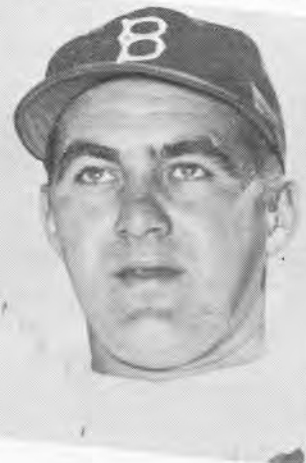

PHIL MASI (above) was a fine receiver who caught 12 of his 15 seasons in the National League. Was with Boston, 1939-1949 and with the White Sox, 1950-1952. Hit .304 in 1947 considered his best year. Ended career with a lifetime batting average of .264.

SIBBY SISTI (right) played his entire 13 season career with the Braves. Was a fine fielder albeit a light hitter. Finished career with a lifetime .244 batting average.

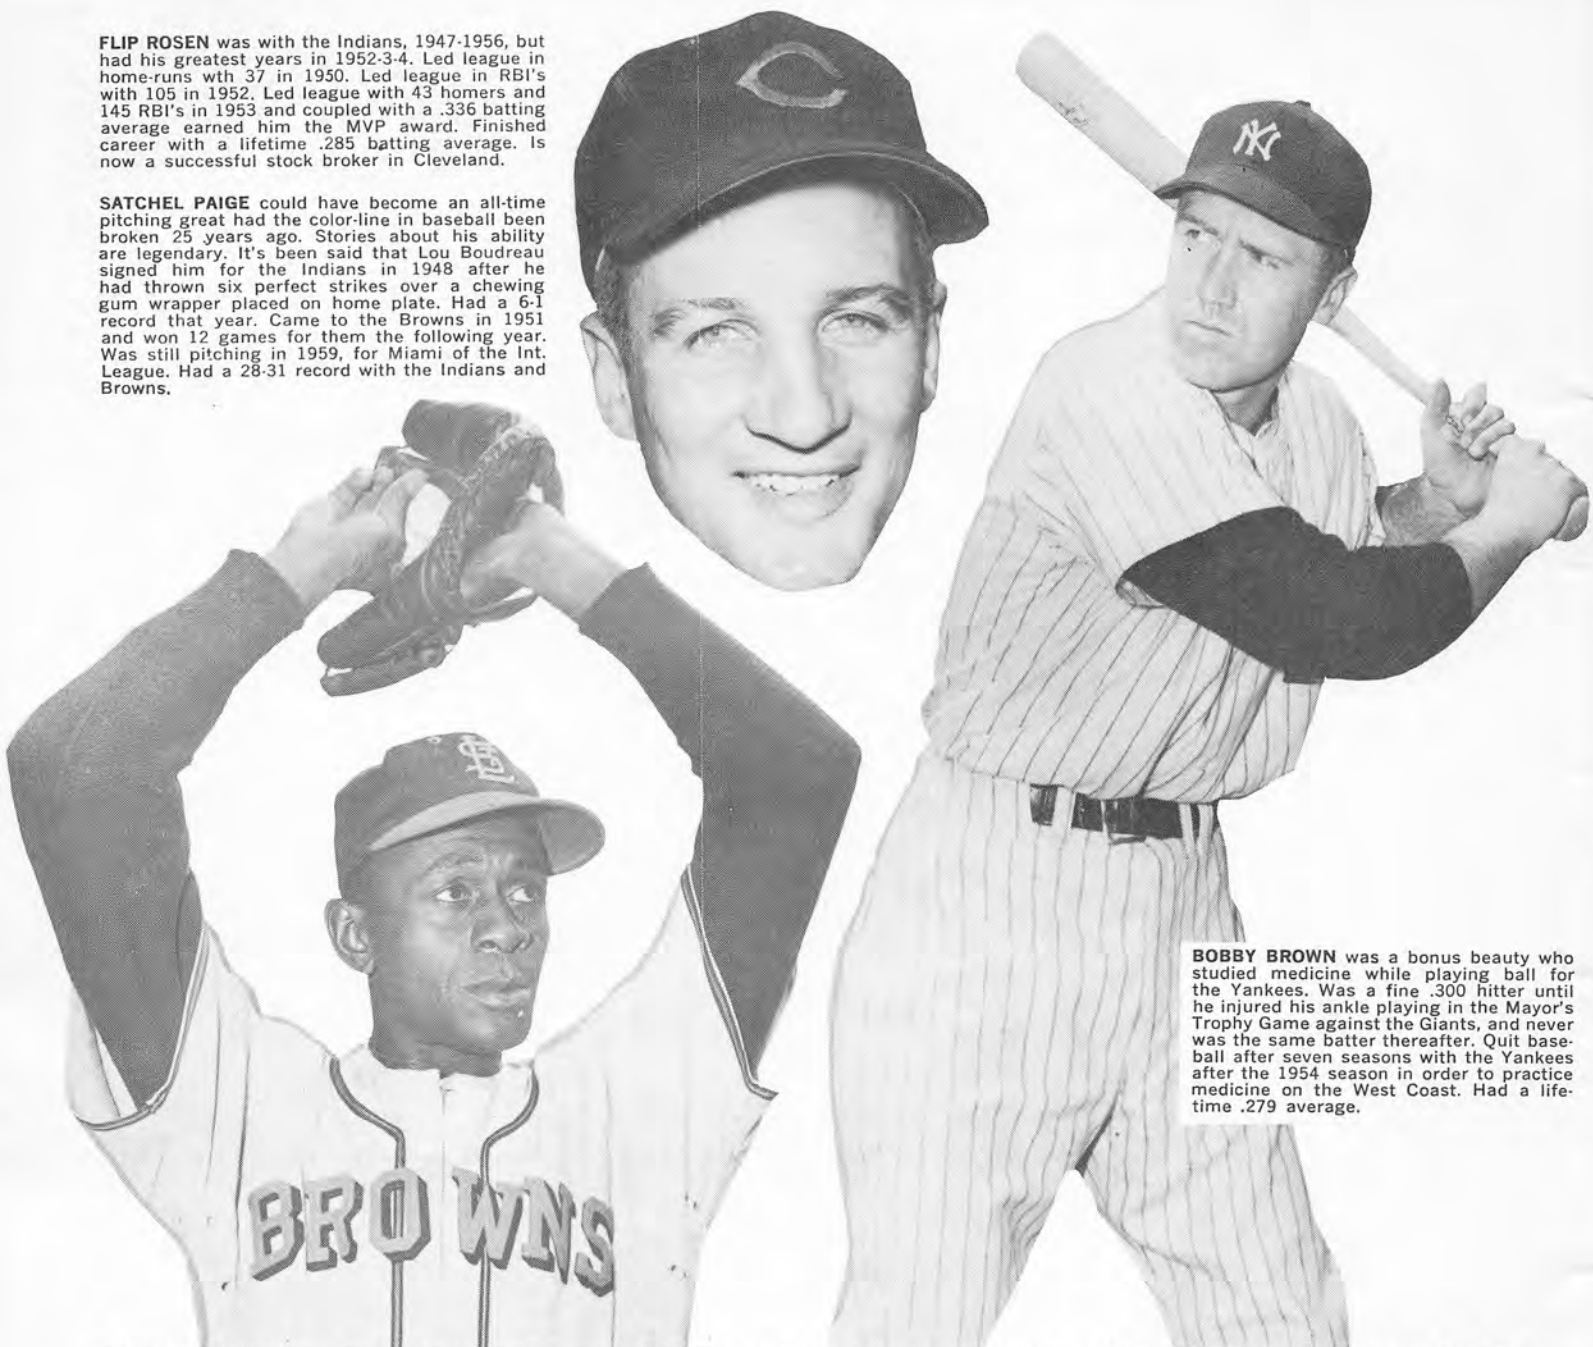

EMIL "DUTCH" LEONARD pitched in the majors for twenty years thanks to a baffling knuckle ball. Toed the slab for the Dodgers, Senators, Phils and Cubs. Had his best season in 1939 for Washington with a 20-8 mark. Finished active career after the 1953 season with the Cubs. Later served them as a pitching coach. Had a lifetime 191-181 record.

FLIP ROSEN was with the Indians, 1947-1956, but had his greatest years in 1952-3-4. Led league in home-runs with 37 in 1950. Led league in RBI's with 105 in 1952. Led league with 43 homers and 145 RBI's in 1953 and coupled with a .336 batting average earned him the MVP award. Finished career with a lifetime .285 batting average. Is now a successful stock broker in Cleveland.

SATCHEL PAIGE could have become an all-time pitching great had the color-line in baseball been broken 25 years ago. Stories about his ability are legendary. It's been said that Lou Boudreau signed him for the Indians in 1948 after he had thrown six perfect strikes over a chewing gum wrapper placed on home plate. Had a 6-1 record that year. Came to the Browns in 1951 and won 12 games for them the following year. Was still pitching in 1959, for Miami of the Int. League. Had a 28-31 record with the Indians and Browns.

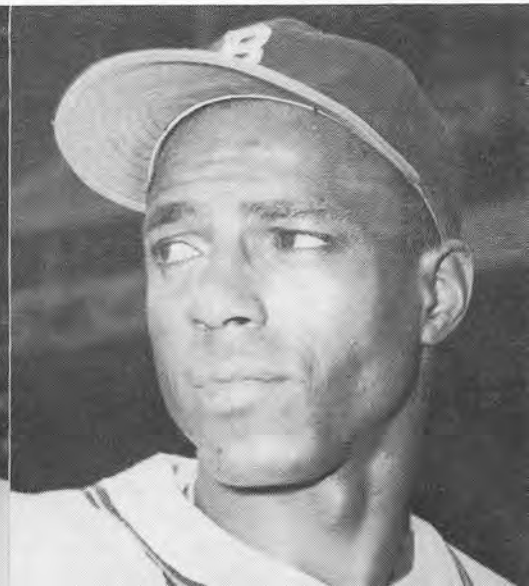

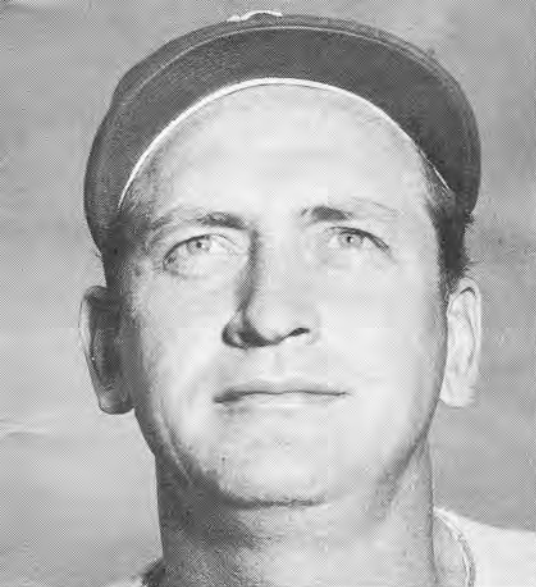

BOBBY BROWN was a bonus beauty who studied medicine while playing ball for the Yankees. Was a fine .300 hitter until he injured his ankle playing in the Mayor's Trophy Game against the Giants, and never was the same batter thereafter. Quit baseball after seven seasons with the Yankees after the 1954 season in order to practice medicine on the West Coast. Had a lifetime .279 average.

HENRY THOMPSON was a graduate of the Negro Leagues who provided a fine brand of third base play for the Giants, 1949-1956. Had his best year in 1953 with a .302 batting average. Set a record in the 1954 world series against the Indians by collecting seven bases on balls in four games. Ended career with a lifetime .267 batting average.

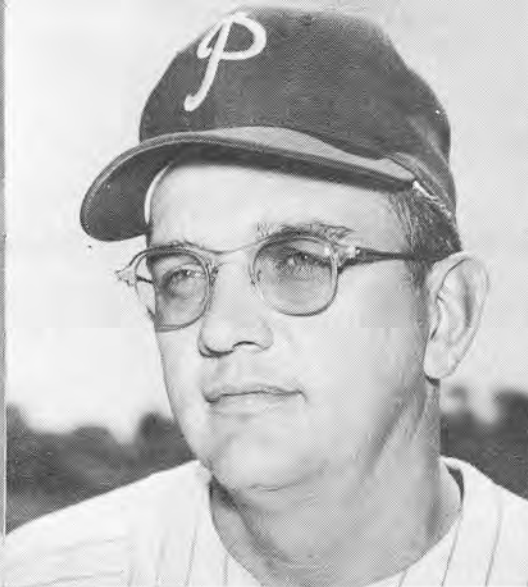

JOE HATTEN was a southpaw of rare promise who never attained the potential the Dodgers had expected, after his second season record of 17-8 in 1947. Put together a 59-39 record for Brooklyn before being sent to the Cubs in 1951. Was released to the PCL in 1952 and left behind a 65-49 major league record.

SAM JETHROE was another graduate of the Negro Leagues who had he lived up to the potential Branch Rickey had predicted for him might have become as great as Jackie Robinson. Sam played the outfield for the Braves, 1950-51-52 but was sent to the Pirates in 1954. However he played in only two games for the Bucs and ended his major league career with a lifetime .261 average.

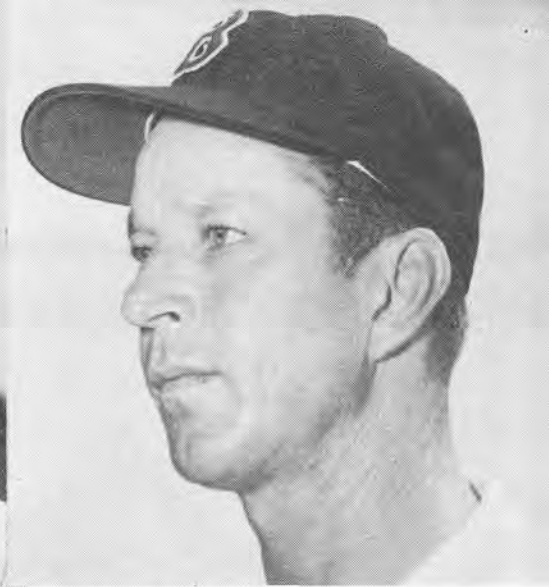

JIM RUSSELL roamed in the outfields of Pittsburgh, 1942-1947, the Braves, 1948-49, and of Brooklyn, 1950-51. Had his best year in 1944 when he hit .312. Finished career with a .267 lifetime average.

JIM KONSTANTY pitched for the Reds and Braves before achieving stardom with the Phils. Helped pitch them to the pennant in 1950 with a 16-7 record while setting two records—appearing in 74 games—finishing 60 games. Such a year won him the MVP award. Was acquired by the Yankees in 1954 and his 7-2 record in 1955 helped them win the pennant. Hung up his spikes after the 1956 season with a lifetime 66-48 record.

ELLIS KINDER broke in with the Browns in 1946. Achieved recognition with the Red Sox for whom he pitched, 1948-1956. Later pitched for the Cards and White Sox. Set record in 1953 by pitching in 69 games for the Bosox. Had his best year in 1949 with a 23-6 record. Ended career with a 102-71 mark.

RALPH KINER was a slugging outfielder with the Pirates, 1946-1953, with the Cubs 1953-54 and with the Indians in 1955. Is tied with Rogers Hornsby with 12 grand-slam homers. Was all-time home run leader of the Pirates with 54 in 1949. Had 351 home-runs to his credit and a lifetime slugging percentage of .554. Was all-time RBI leader of the Pirates with 127 in 1947 and 1949. Batted over .300 three times. Finished a ten season career with a .279 lifetime average.

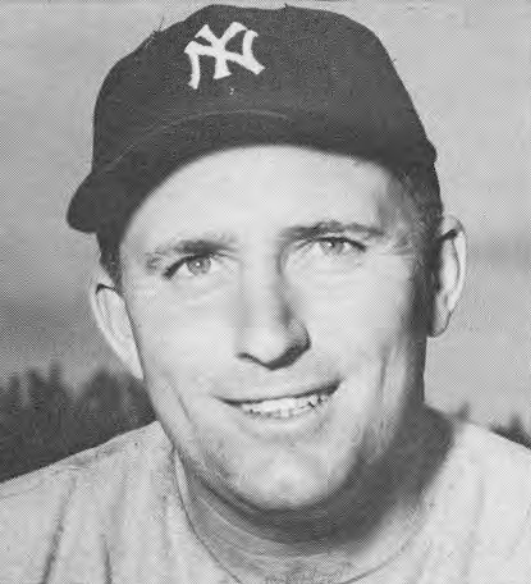

JOE GARAGIOLA caught for the Cards, Pirates, Cubs and Giants during his nine season career. However, it has been as a broadcaster and after-dinner speaker that he has acquired prominence. Had a lifetime batting average of .257 and by his own admission never struck fear in the hearts of pitchers.

AL ZARILLA was an outfielder who twice played for the Browns and Red Sox, and once for the White Sox. Hit .329 for St. Louis in 1948 and .325 for Boston in 1950. Finished a 10 year career with a .277 lifetime batting average.

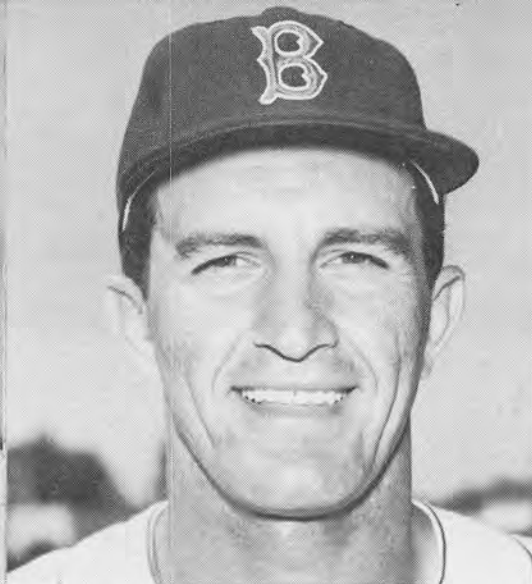

GEORGE STIRNWEISS was a college football star as well as a fine player with the Yankees, 1943-1950. Batted .319 in 1944 and edged out Tony Cuccinello for the batting title in 1945 by one point with a .309 average. Was acquired by Cleveland in 1951 but hung up his spikes after the 1952 season. Had a lifetime .268 batting average. His untimely death in 1958 in a train mis-hap was a great shock to all who knew him.

FRANK SHEA had a fine rookie year with the Yankees in 1947 with a 14-5 record and two victories over the Dodgers in the world series. After a disappointing 15-16 record compiled during 1948-1951 was sent to the Senators. Won 25 and lost 27 for the Nats and retired after the 1955 season with an overall lifetime record of 56-46.

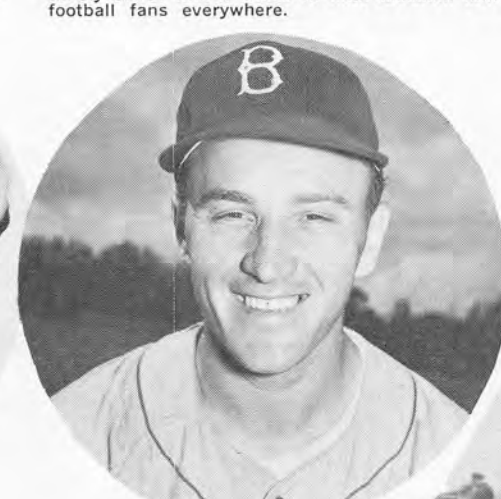

HARRY AGGANIS was a fine college football player in addition to being a good major league prospect. Became a bonus player for the Red Sox and batted .251 participating in 132 games in 1954. However, he succumbed to a massive blood clot and passed away in 1955. His untimely death was a shock to both baseball and football fans everywhere.

ALLIE CLARK came to the Yankees in 1947 and batted .373 in 47 games. Was with Cleveland for the 1948 season and batted .310. Was sent to the A's in 1951 and to the White Sox in 1953. Finished a seven season major league career with a lifetime batting average of .262.

MEL PARNELL was a fine pitcher for the Red Sox, 1947-1956. Enjoyed his best season in 1949 by winning 25 and losing only seven. Had another fine year in 1953 with a 21-8 mark. No-hit the White Sox 4-0 in 1956. A chronic sore arm forced him to retire after the 1956 season after having put together a nice 123-75 lifetime record.

GEORGE SHUBA was nicknamed "shot-gun" because the line drives he hit traveled as if shot from a gun. Didn't hit for the big average despite a .305 mark in 1952, but delivered when the ducks were on the pond. Ended a major league career of seven years with a lifetime .259 batting average.

CHUCK DIERING was a graceful ball player who could roam center field with the best of them, but his light hitting shortened his stay in the majors. Had a lifetime .249 batting average.

FRANK BAUMHOLTZ was a talented basketball star as well as a fine outfielder for the Reds, Cubs, and Phils. Batted .325 and .306 in 1952-53. Ended a ten season career with a lifetime .290 average.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON

WALTER JOHNSON

OLD TIMER'S

BASEBALL PHOTO ALBUM VOL. 1

BOB FELLER

TRIS SPEAKER

RALPH KINER

AL SIMMONS

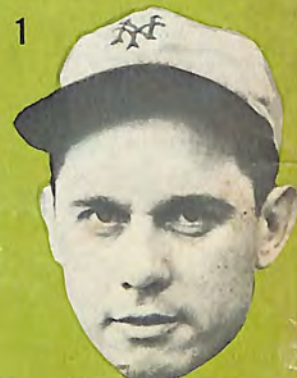

CY YOUNG

CHAS. "CHIEF"
BENDER

JIMMY FOXX

BILL TERRY

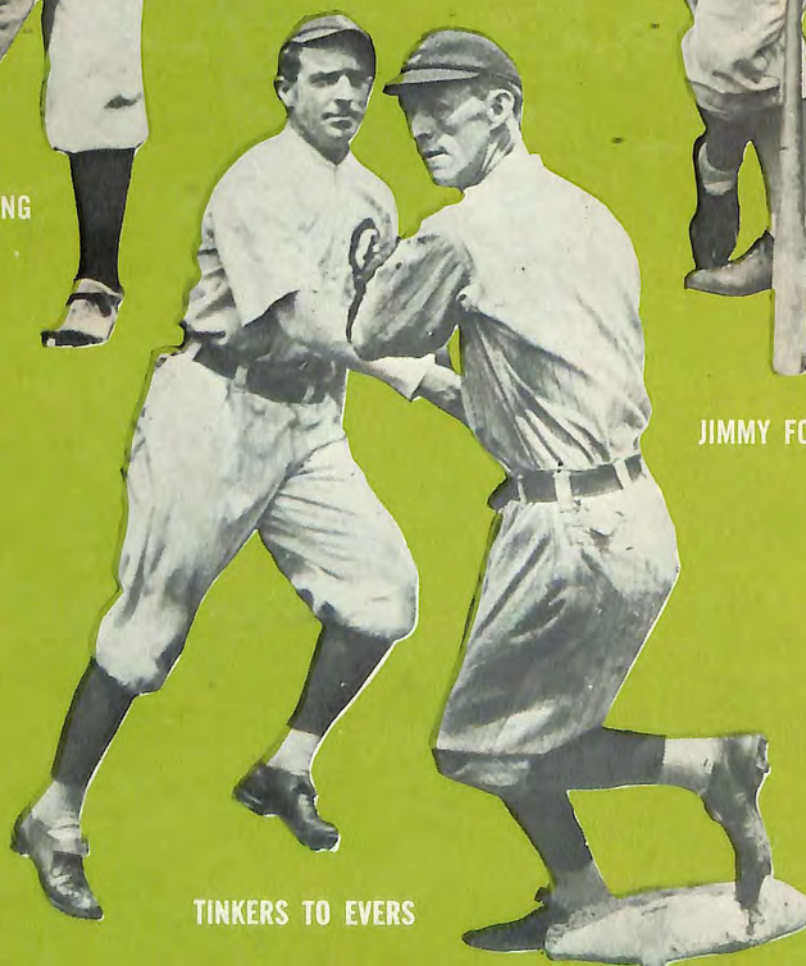

CARL HUBBELL

GEORGE SISLER

HANK GREENBERG

TINKERS TO EVERS

OVER 300 COLLECTOR'S ITEM PHOTOS OF
FAMOUS OLD TIMERS FROM THE 1890's ON